Summer Camp Real For Blind Children

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

Like many kid-type activities, summer camp used to be just a dream for the blind and visually impaired. But, now it is possible for those children to be able to look back on such an outing during the humdrum of the rest of the year.

As proof of the success and the ability to offer the experience, the National Camps for the Blind announced Tuesday an expansion of its 6-year-old free program into an 11-site coast-to-coast effort.

Beginning June 25, the camps will open for five-day sessions, including Camp Arrowhead near Lexington.

Through the expansion move, five more sites were added to last year's list of six to now include camps located in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Alabama, Massachusetts, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Washington, Virginia and California, in addition to Nebraska. Florida hosted the first camp.

Plenty Of Activities

Activities offered include water skiing, horseback riding, archery, swimming, crafts and other activities enjoyed by the sighted.

Ray Hulbartt of Lincoln, who originated the camps, conceded there are some differences, such as safety lines strung all over the grounds and one counselor per four children. Another difference arises in crafts.

Hulbartt said: "Their work may not be the best but the thrill of doing the same activities their sighted friends enjoy makes up for any technical deficiency. Happy laughter makes extra effort worthwhile."

The visually impaired even manage to go one up on their sighted friends on the activity list, Hulbartt said. That, he said, is a "hands-on zoo."

'Seeing' Tame Animals

Each camp has a nature center where the children are allowed to "see" the tamed animals with their hands. Alligators, raccoons and black bears are just a few of the animals available.

However, Hulbartt said, while most blind children are anxious to attend camp, many parents prove to be a bit apprehensive about letting them go. To allay fears, as well as inform parents of activities, a representative from the Christian Record Braille Foundation visits them.

The camps are offered by the National Camps for the Blind through the foundation, which is affiliated with the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

But, as are the other services provided free to the blind in all of the United States and 88 other countries, the camps are non-sectarian to users.

Cost $50 Each

The average cost is $50 per session for each of the 50 to 100 who attend each regional camp. The money is raised entirely through donations, and Hulbartt said a contribution from parents is by no means mandatory.

Local campaigns are initiated across the nation each year to fund the program and the director said the only limit imposed on numbers comes from the success of the campaigns. He said, even trading stamps, which require about 25 per child, are donated.

This year's camp schedule by opening date includes: June 25, Camp Yorktown Bay, Ark.; June 25, Horseshoe Canyon Camp, Okla.; July 2, Camp Alamisco, Ala.; June 16, Camp Winnekeag, Mass.; July 23, Camp Kulaqua, Fla.; July 23, Timber Ridge Camp, Ind.; July 30, Forest Ridge Camp, Iowa; Aug. 6 Camp Arrowhead, Neb.; Aug. 13, Sunset Lake Camp, Wash.; Aug. 20, Blue Ridge Camp, Va.; Aug. 27, Camp Cedar Falls, Calif.

LINCOLNITE IS PRESIDENTIAL SCHOLAR

Allen Wallis, chancellor of the University of Rochester and chairman of the Commission on Presidential Scholars.

Payroll Tax Hike Clause Included

. . . 10% Increase Recommended

Washington (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee finished work Tuesday on a mammoth bill to increase Social Security benefits 10% and fix tough new work-or-else requirements for many welfare recipients.

The Social Security boost for 27.8 million Americans would apply to the retirement, survivor and disability programs.

It would be retroactive to June 1 but probably would not be reflected in monthly checks until next fall.

To pay for it, the committee fixed new higher payroll tax schedules. These would mean a $113.40 tax hike next year for a person who earns at least $10,200 and the same for his employer, as compared with the 1972 bite.

The $17.6 billion bill also would:

—Give many special Social Security benefits to various groups of recipients, including widows, the disabled, and persons who work beyond 65.

—Increase monthly payments substantially for nearly all the 3 million aged, blind and disabled on the welfare rolls.

—Tighten regulations sharply for the 11 million recipients on the largest welfare program, covering families with dependent children.

—Establish controls in an effort to cut back the costs of the two big health programs, Medicare for the aged and Medicaid for the poor.

—Cover for the first time under Medicare a major part of the cost of maintenance prescription drugs needed by chronically ill aged persons.

—Extend Medicare health protection to about 1.5 million disabled persons on the Social Security and railroad retirement rolls.

—Put into effect a new financing scheme for the welfare programs which would save the states about $2.6 billion in annual costs.

Finance Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said it will take about three weeks to complete drafting of the several hundred pages of text in the legislation.

This will mean, he said, that the Senate cannot start debate on it until it reconvenes July 17 after the Democratic National Convention.

It appears certain the Senate will revise the 10% general increase on the floor to make it 20%. Well over half of the membership has endorsed the higher figure. The House has voted a 5% boost.

A major floor fight already has been promised over the committee's new Workfare plan affecting families with dependent children.

Families with children all 6 and over, comprising about 1.2 million adults and 3.2 million children, would be made ineligible for welfare and shifted to a Workfare program. The family head, usually a mother, would have to take a job in order to have income.

Efforts would be made by a federal employment corporation to get jobs for all the Workfare adults in private industry.

The corporation would make supplementary payments in these cases. But if no such jobs were available, the corporation would provide public service employment at $1.20 an hour.

To finance the Social Security part of the bill, the committee agreed on a new tax schedule which would boost both the wage base, the amount of annual earnings taxed, and the tax rate.

The base, now $9,000, would go up to $10,200 effective in 1973.

The rate, 5.2% this year, would be increased to 5.7% for the worker and employer in 1973-77 and eventually go to 7.4% in 2011 with step increases in between.

Under present law, the rate is scheduled to advance to 5.65% next year.

For the families with preschool children totalling 1.8 million adults and 4.8 million children, the AFDC program would be retained but in a different form.

The states would set the level of payments, as they do now, but Washington no longer would provide open-ended matching funds. Instead, there would be block grants keyed to the 1972 federal allotments; and these would be raised only in proportion to a state's population growth.

The Committee's revision would mean that a person earning at least $10,200 next year would pay a tax of $581.40 compared with $468 due this year and $505.5 which he would pay in 1973 under present law.

For the self-employed, the rate which now is 7.5% would increase to 7.95% in 1973 and eventually go to 8.7% in 1994. The base for the self-employed would be the same, $10,200.

School Budget Projects 6% General Fund Boost

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday began preliminary discussions on its 1972-73 budget with a look at projections estimating a mill levy increase of about two mills and a dollar hike of about 6% more than this year's general fund figures.

All of the figures are tentative, school officials cautioned, since salary determinations are held up in a dispute with Lincoln teachers and assessed valuation in the district can only be estimated for next year.

The figures will also change as the school board reviews budget recommendations from school district administrators, makes budget determinations and rechecks expected costs.

5.5% Increase Assumed

The figures studied by the board Tuesday in an informal work session following its regular bi-monthly meeting were based on an assumed salary increase of about 5.5% in overall costs.

That reflects the highest offer made to the teachers in spring negotiations, which deadlocked when teachers held out for larger increases.

Teacher spokesmen said the increases the board called 5.5% would average much less when turnover and other factors were considered, and they argued that federal wage guidelines permitted them healthier increases.

Determination of final salary figures will await completion of a fact-finding study by a three member board and approval of an agreement by the school board and the teachers themselves.

Thus, the assumed 5.5% salary increase might change before budget considerations are completed.

If that comes close to the final figure, however, Tuesday's discussion indicated the district might expect an increase in the two-mill range.

54.853 This Year

This year's total school mill levy is 54.853 on an assessed valuation of slightly more than $390 million.

Assuming a growth of the valuation to $410 million, the tentative figures show an increase of about two mills to 56.7.

Supt. John Prasch said he believes the $410 million figure may be too high. Final announcement of that figure will await a determination by the county, probably after the school board finalizes its 1972-73 budget.

Tuesday's preliminary figures showed a possible increase in total general fund expenditures of about 6%, from nearly $23.5 million this year to slightly less than $25 million next year, and a gentral fund mill levy hike from 44.3 to 46.4.

The school board figures also assume collection of the full four mills in building fund monies, decreasing levy amounts for the retirement fund and bond payments, and a small increase for Technical College operations.

Rapid City Begins Burying The Dead

Rapid City, S.D. (AP) — The lengthy task of burying the victims of the flood that swept out of the Black Hills last weekend began Tuesday as survivors started to try to dig out, clean up and rebuild their lives.

Civil Defense officials lowered the number of dead by four to 198. There was no explanation.

Anton "Vernie" Zieglmeir, a retail store department manager, was buried in Fountain View Cemetery with 75 mourners present. Graveside services for victims also were held at Mount Calvary and Black Hills National cemeteries.

The City Council empowered the Army Corps of Engineers to move into the disaster area and begin piling and removing the rubble of more than 70% destroyed homes.

Another 1,000 houses and 100 mobile homes were damaged by the torrents of Rapid Creek, which overflowed its banks and spewed walls of water through 80 city blocks. Damage was estimated at more than $100 million.

Scuba divers searched streams and tributaries for bodies and 2,500 state National Guardsmen dug in ruins closest to the creeks. Army dogs also were used to seek bodies buried in the tons of mire and silt that rolled through the city late Friday.

Authorities believe some bodies washed far downstream to the Cheyenne River and may never be recovered. The list of missing remained in the hundreds, although officials said many families and friends were being reunited.

The burials were expected to continue for at least a week. A memorial service was scheduled Sunday at a local high school.

Meanwhile, a dozen federal agencies coordinated with the Office of Emergency Preparedness started the recovery phase for Rapid City's 43,000 residents.

The Red Cross and Salvation Army have collected thousands of articles of clothing and have issued a plea for cash contributions to enable them to make purchases rather than become involved in transporting clothing and food.

City water service remained off in most areas of Ropid City for the fourth straight day Tuesday.

Gov. Richard S. Kneip said he would discuss with federal officials the possibility of the federal government's declaring the four-county region an economic development area, to help rebuild its economic structure.

Kneip said the International Business Machine Corp. contributed $75,000 to aid victims of the flood. "I received $25,000 of it for use any way we see fit and I signed over $50,000 to the American Red Cross today," he said Tuesday.

The governor said the $25,000 would go immediately to victims in the hardest-hit area in Rapid City.

Truck Mirror Kills Boy, 10

A Waverly boy was dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth Health Center after he was struck by a large outside mirror of a pickup truck on the Prairie Home Road overpass at Interstate 80 Tuesday afternoon, the State Patrol said.

Officials said Gary E. Hansen, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bailey, was killed when he was struck by the mirror of a truck driven by Carolyn Gregg, of 4100 Cornhusker, Lincoln.

Officials said the pickup was northbound on the overpass when the Hansen boy started to cross the road. Mrs. Gregg swerved in an attempt to miss the boy, but he was struck by an outside mirror on the the mirror, officers said.

3 Nebraskans Die In Crash

Philadelphia (AP) — Three Nebraska sisters were killed Tuesday when the car in which they were riding collided with a tractor-trailer at an intersection in Valley Forge State Park.

Park police identified the victims as Wilda Binegar, 60, of North Platte; Leona Maher, 57, of Sutherland; and Vivian Meyen, 62, of Ogallala.

The car was driven by Mrs. Donna Samuelson, 34, of Springfield Township, Pa. Authorities said she was the daughter of Mrs. Binegar.

Mrs. Samuelson and her father, Simon, received minor injuries, police said.

Authorities said the truck was descending a hill when the approaching car apparently turned across its path to enter a snack bar. The truck struck the car's side at a point where the three women were believed sitting in the back seat.

Needed Moisture Arrives

Showers in eastern Nebraska Tuesday afternoon and evening brought needed moisture to the area.

Lincoln received .87 of an inch, while Omaha reported .71 and at Beaver Crossing, in Seward County, rain gauges recorded .45.

Other moisture reports included Burwell .26, McCook .12, Norfolk .03 and Valenine .01.

Campaign On Ecology Carries Kathy To Win

Kathy Abernathy, 16, who summed up her campaign platform as being centered around ecology in Nebraska, was elected governor of Girls State Tuesday.

Kathy, who was on the Student Advisory Board at Omaha Westside, defeated National Party nominee Colleen Powell in the gubernatorial election. Kathy is a member of the Federal Party.

She attributed part of her success at the polls to her ecology platform, but said most of the recognition is due "to campaign support from my town — Jefferson Town. They were just great."

"I've seen a lot of very good examples of pollution in Omaha," Kathy said. Her platform called for immediate restrictions to be placed on industrial polluters, and installation of anti-pollution devices in industrial plants.

She also urged a slow-down in the building of corporate industries that are adding to the "crud" in Nebraska.

Kathy said there was some controversy Monday over the issue of amnesty and the draft. She said her party came up with a two-year work program similar to the conscientious objector status. Those not wishing to go into the armed services would have the choice of doing volunteer work, "something that benefits people, and that requires some devotion," Kathy said.

Other state officers elected were Ranae Raasch of Omaha, lieutenant governor; Teresa Jo Creal of Lincoln, secretary of state; Rosemarie Hruska of Sidney, state treasurer; Kathryn Chamerlain of Tekamah, state auditor; Debbie Biba of Geneva, attorney general; and Kathleen Creamer of Gibbon, Patricia Boice of Osmond, Denise Erickson of Hooper, Jill Fetherton of Aitknson, and Norene Havel of Exeter, railway commissioners.

South Vietnamese Troops End Siege At An Loc

(c) New York Times News Service

Laikhe, South Vietnam — The arrival of large numbers of fresh South Vietnamese troops by air in the An Loc area Tuesday seemed to signal the end of the 67-day-old siege for the embattled provincial capital. Enemy troops have been evicted except for a small triangular pocket they hold in the northwest corner of a town that has been virtually destroyed by fighting. (More On Page 2.)

Congress Receives Treaty

Washington — Congress was asked to approve the two strategic arms limitation agreements signed by President Nixon in Moscow and to continue appropriation funds for weapons systems not covered by the accord. At the same time the president made the formal request, he made public a 3,000-word document containing details of 18 understandings reached with the Russians. (More On Page 2.)

Israelis, Egypt Claim Victory

Jerusalem — In the first air battle between Israel and Egypt since the ceasefire came into effect 22 months ago, claims of the two participants were distinctly at odds. Egypt claimed that two Israeli Mirage fighters were shot down some 30 miles northwest of Port Said. The Israeli air force claimed two Egyptian MIG 21s were shot down over the international waters of the Mediterranean. (More On Page 20.)

End-The-War Bid Fails

Washington — End-the-war legislation proposed by the Democrats was rejected by the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Instead, a resolution endorsing President Nixon's Vietnam policy was adopted. Despite the White House victory, the closeness of the vote portends difficulties for the administration when the issue reaches the House floor.

Social Security Hike OK'd

Washington — The Senate Finance Committee voted to raise social security taxes next year as it finished nearly a year of work on the most far-reaching and costly pension and welfare bill in the nation's history. The bill would increase benefits by 10% among other provisions. (More On Page 1.)

Vote Is Scheduled

Washington — In a hastily called meeting with Democratic and Republican House leaders, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and representatives of the nation's governors and mayors apparently convinced the House leadership that it had enough votes to pass a revenue-sharing bill next week.

Congress Receives Arms Agreements

Washington (AP) — President Nixon submitted his nuclear-arms pacts with the Soviet Union to Congress Tuesday and assured members that they safeguard American security. Then he scheduled an unusual White House session to promote his program with congressional leaders.

He asked about 120 members of five key committees of Senate and House to join in an "in-depth discussion" Thursday morning on the treaty and agreement which he signed with the Soviet leaders in Moscow on May 26 during the summit conference.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President will open the session and that his top security adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, will brief the legislators and answer questions on the treaty and agreement that require congressional ratification and approval. The President will not be questioned, Ziegler said.

To Explain Thinking

Zieger said the aim of the 8 a.m. CDT session in the East Room, is to give members of the important committees the President's thinking on why ratification and approval "will serve the country's interest and the cause of peace."

On previous occasions, the White House has balked at permitting Kissinger to testify before congressional committees but this move, in effect will permit Kissinger to go before the committee members on White House grounds.

Kissinger will be the lone administration spokesman at the session but Secretary of State William P. Rogers, and Gerard Smith, head of the SALT delegation, will testify on Capitol Hill, Ziegler said.

The press spokesman added that formal testimony will begin next Monday on the treaty with Rogers appearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Points Of Disagreement

Since the broad outlines of the understandings reached at the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks—SALT—had been made known in detail before, attention on the President's message to Congress centered on points of real or potential disagreement remaining between the nuclear powers.

For the first time, Nixon set down for Congress a listing of major points on which the United States and the Soviet Union have expressed their own intepretations of what the accords really mean.

Calling the papers he brought back from Moscow "an important first step in checking the arms race." Nixon said:

"The defense capabilities of the United States are second to none in the world today. I am determined that they shall remain so. The terms of the ABM treaty and interim agreement will permit the United States to take the steps we deem necessary to maintain a strategic posture which protects our vital interests and guarantees our continued security."

Two-Thirds Vote Needed

The treaty, requiring a two-thirds majority in the Senate for ratificaton, covers defensive arms. A companion agreement to curb offensive weapons, expiring in five years, is up for approval by both houses through joint resolution which will require simple majorities for adoption.

Effectiveness of the agreement is contingent upon ratification of the treaty.

Arkansas Democrat J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said hearings on the documents will begin perhaps as early as Thursday but no later than next Monday.

Fulbright said he has no intent to delay proceedings but wondered aloud to a newsman if final action could come before Congress recesses June 30 for the July 4 holiday and the Democratic National Convention, starting July 10.

Some skeptics have said the Moscow settlements might place the United States at a military disadvantage. Nixon said, however, that if his executive agreement to limit strategic offensive arms is not followed by a broader treaty or other accord within five years "it would constitute a basis for withdrawal from the ABM defensive treaty" should U.S. national interests be jeopardized. Either country can repudiate the ABM treaty on six months' notice.

Still Far Apart

In the paper work Nixon submitted, the Soviet Union and the United States were shown to be far apart on the question of modern submarines belonging to third countries — specifically U.S. allies in Western Europe — that could be used to launch strategic missiles.

The Soviet government was quoted as taking the view that should members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization increase their up-to-date sub fleet within the five-year lifetime of the executive agreement, "the Soviet Union will have the right to a corresponding increase" in the number of its submarines.

The United States replied that it "does not accept the validity of the considerations in that statement."

The United States also took the separate view, not specifically pinpointed in the accord, that any increase in the defenses of Soviet early warning system radars by surface-to-air missiles would be inconsistent with its understanding of the Moscow settlement.

Potential Cited

The White House document said this position was prompted by the fact that Soviet "Henhouse" radars "have a significant ABM potential" because they can detect and track incoming ballistic missile warheads at great distances.

The aim, obviously is to make certain that the Soviets do not strive for back-door ways of boosting their ABM program, limited by the treaty to two defensive missile sites in each country.

"Together," Nixon said in his special message, "the two agreements provide for a more stable strategic balance in the next several years than would be possible if strategic arms competition continued unchecked. This benefits not only the United States and the Soviet Union, but all the nations of the world."

To those who fear the accords would place the United States at a military disadvantage, Nixon said "they do not close off all avenues of strategic competition."

He said it is essential "that we carry forward a sound strategic modernization program to maintain our security and to ensure that more permanent and comprehensive arms limitation agreements can be reached'.'

Dayan Target Of Massacre

Paris (AP) — A spokesman of the Palestine Liberation Organization said Tuesday the purpose of the Tel-Aviv airport massacre May 30 was to kill Israeli Defense Minister Gen. Moshe Dayan, "who was expected to be there at the time, but was not."

Kamal Adouan said the airport attack was the "continuation of a dialogue started at that same airport between the leader of the commando which hijacked the Sabena aircraft and Moshe Dayan." Dayan ordered the operation in which Israeli soldiers rushed the airliner May 9 and killed two of the hijackers.

U.S. Laser-Guided Bombs Continue Destruction

Saigon (AP) —American flyers using laser-guided bombs brought down two railroad bridges in North Vietnam close to the Chinese frontier and blasted eight more bridges and two fuel depots elsewhere in the country, U.S. military spokesmen said Tuesday.

The attacks Monday on the pair of bridges on Hanoi's northeast rail line to China marked the second day of strikes within 25 miles of the Chinese border. The bridges 55 and 60 miles northeast of the North Vietnamese capital were knocked out just hours before Peking warned the U.S. raids constituted "grave provocations" against China. Air Force F4 Phantoms hit the previously unscathed bridges with 2,000-pound bombs guided by laser beams.

Air Force, Marine and Navy fighter-bombers flew 290 strikes over the North on Monday and damaged or destroyed two fuel depots within three miles of the port city of Vinh, the U.S. Command announced. American pilots also hit eight other bridges, including one under construction 26 miles northwest of Haiphong, the command said.

U.S. B52 bombers pounded enemy supply dumps near the North Vietnamese port city of Dong Hoi Tuesday for the sixth straight day. The raids 21 to 60 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone were aimed at destroying war supplies destined for use by enemy troops in the South.

Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency claimed the North Vietnamese air force shot down two U.S. F4 fighter-bombers over the North on Tuesday and captured several American pilots. The U.S. Command did not report any losses.

Ground action was relatively light in South Vietnam and little progress toward breaking the 68-day siege at An Loc was reported. Refugees fleeing the provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon came under enemy fire and a government relief force remained stalled outside the devastated town.

North Vietnamese troops along Highway 13 fired on a column of 1,000 civilians moving south, killing five to 10 refugees and wounding 30 to 40. Helicopters have been flying into An Loc in the last few days to resupply the government defenders but field sources said antiaircraft fire Tuesday prevented an attempt to evacuate about 500 wounded soldiers.

Allied officers predicted the rubber plantation town, which once had a population of 25,000 to 30,000, may be under firm government control by the weekend. But they added Highway 13, the only overland route to An Loc, must be opened and secured before the siege can be considered over. The city has been cleared of resistance except for some pockets of enemy forces in the northern half, field sources said.

Allied officers estimate only a handful of enemy troops are tying up the drive northward to An Loc on Highway 13. They are thought to be members of the North Vietnamese 7th Division which is trained in road cutting and ambush.

"If the South Vietnamese would accept taking as many casualties in an attack as they do sitting here, they'd have been through here long ago. They'd probably take fewer losses," one U.S. adviser said.

Senior South Vietnamese officers admit their forces have taken 4,000 casualties, including 1,500 killed, in the two-month battle. Casualties in the city averaged 10 killed and 60 wounded a day. Enemy losses are said to be 25,000.

The battle is approaching the record of the Indochina war, the 77-day siege of the U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh in 1967-68.

In Saigon, analysts said there were indications the policy-making central Committee of Hanoi's Communist party has decided to continue the 11-week offensive despite the U.S. bombing and mining of North Vietnamese harbors.

The finding was based on several articles carried by Nhan Dan, the official party newspaper, and a communique issues last weekend by Hanoi's Council of Mininters, which said North Vietnam was on a "war footing." The war policy decisions were believed to have been made at a meeting of the party's Central Committee last month.

Aircraft Carrier, Ranger, Leaves Alameda Base

Alameda, Calif. (AP) — The aircraft carrier Ranger headed out of San Francisco Bay Monday night from its base in Alameda carrying a crew of 4,600.

A 7th Fleet spokesman declined to say whether the 78,000-ton vessel was headed for another tour of duty in Southeast Asian war areas.

"We are not able to release such information at this time. All I can say is that she's at sea," the spokesman aid.

Wrapped Bomb Found Before Shah's Address

Geneva (UPI) — Police discovered a homemade bomb on the grounds of the United Nations European headquarters Tuesday several hours before the Shah of Iran arrived for a 24-hour visit amid the tightest security precautions since the 1955 Geneva summit conference.

The bomb, consisting of two and a half pounds of explosives wrapped in a parcel, was found beneath a gilded monument about 200 yards from the Palais Des Nations Assembly Hall where Shah Mohamed Reza addresses the International Labor Conference Wednes-

Malfunctioning Cargo Hatch Blamed In Midair Accident

Detroit (AP) — A malfunctioning cargo hatch door was the apparent cause of an accident that crippled an American Airlines DC 10 jetliner high over Ontario, Canada, authorities said Tuesday.

Investigators for the FBI, the airline and other agencies said the door came loose in some unexplained manner minutes after the huge plane with 56 passengers and a crew of 11 took off from Detroit en route to Buffalo and New York City.

The only injuries came when nine passengers were hurt sliding out emergency escape chutes after the plane landed.

Capt. Bryce McCormick, the pilot of the craft, recalled later: "At first, I thought I had had a midair collision."

"There was a loud bang and a cloud of debris and dust was blown through the cockpit and I was temporarily blinded," McCormick said.

When the $23-million plane was ripped open and depressurized at the 12,000-foot level, the hatch door and some baggage — including a casket — were blown out as the crew fought to control the plane.

Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas said that when McCormick asked for emergency landing clearance at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, from which he had just taken off, the pilot radioed: "We have had an explosion in the baggage compartment or something has hit the plane."

The captain said later, "To my recollection, I do not remember telling them there had been an explosion. I told them everything (hand luggage, et al) was to remain on the plane so officials could investigate to determine the possibility of any explosion."

The intensity of the depressurization peeled back a large strip of the outer skin of the big plane and the left tail assembly sustained a large gash where the casket, the door or some other item from the plane smashed into it.

One of the plane's three engines was out and it had no rudder control or left braking system when it returned to the airport.

McCormick said he was "scaredest . . . when we were on the ground and the plane was rolling . . . I thought it was going to roll right into the terminal because I could not get it back on the runway."

McCormick said his first officer, Gaige Whitney, feathered the plane's left engine, using it as a brake as the plane bounced along on the concrete landing strip and the grassy interior for nearly 5,000 feet before it stopped. He said there was no noticeable loss of altitude when the hatch door broke off. Observers said that if the door had torn loose when the plane was at its normal cruising height of 35,000 to 38,000 feet, the ripoff and resultant damage and injury probably would have been more serious.

The National Transportation Safety Board joined the FBI and the Federal Aviation Agency in probing the mishap. Chairman John Reed said the Safety Board also wanted to look into the emergency evacuation of the big plane because of the injuries.

The FAA said failure of the cargo door at an altitude of over two miles could have an explosive effect on the plane and its occupants. Typical of the passenger reaction was that of J. Kenneth Wylie of Springfield, Mass., an insurance executive, who said, "I heard nothing I would call an explosion. There was a sudden swoosh of air. What some passengers thought was smoke from an explosion was really condensation of vapors due to a sudden change in air pressure when the cabin ruptured."

No interviews were permitted by American Airlines with the eight stewardesses or the other two members of the flight crew.

SHEET-DRAPED COFFIN . . . lays alone in field near Windsor.

'...It Looked Like A Coffin'

Windsor, Ont. (UPI) — Sante Facca was working in his flower garden Monday evening when he saw a coffin hurtling through the sky.

It landed in a cornfield 50 yards from his home in suburban Sandwich South Township and gouged an 8-inch hole in the ground.

When Facca, a contractor and part-time farmer, got to it, the lower lid of the ornate white metal casket was open. He could see white-stockinged legs inside.

"I thought it was a doll. I just stood there and couldn't believe it," the 63-year-old man said. "It was scary and I was pretty nervous."

He called police and "told them something fell from the sky that looked like a coffin with maybe a dummy inside it," he said.

The coffin was real. It contained the body of a 72-year-old woman being shipped from Wisconsin to Buffalo, N.Y.

The casket slipped out of an American Airlines DC10 when a cargo hatch opened 12,000 feet up in the air, causing a decompression explosion.

After some confusion over legal entanglements, Kent County Coroner Kenneth Rock released the body to American Airlines authorities who dispatched it to Buffalo.

The cargo hatch was the only other falling object, airline officials said. The door landed in Facca's front yard. He said it was lucky neither the hatch nor coffin hit his home.

"I guess it was lucky they didn't hit me," too," he said.

Whitelaw Turns Down Cease-Fire Proposal

Belfast (AP)— Britain's top administrator in Northern Ireland Tuesday night turned down an offer from the militant wing of the Irish Republican Army for a seven-day cease-fire in return for peace talks. He said he could not "respond to ultimatums from terrorists.

As the offer from the IRA Provisional wing was made, violence raged across Belfast. A series of bus hijackings and burnings threw the city into chaos. A 12-year-old girl was critically wounded when caught in a gun fight between guerrillas and British troops.

The offer hinged on British acceptance of the key demands of the guerrilla organization, including an end to arrests and arms searches. And it warned that if the British refused the offer, the only alternative was an intensified campaign of violence.

William Whitelaw, British secretary of state in Northern Ireland, rejected the offer.

An official statement said:

"The secretary of state cannot respond to ultimatums from terrorists who are causing suffering to innocent citizens in Northern Ireland and shooting British troops. They should listen to the people and cease the violence at once. Peace and normal life will then be restored to the long-suffering people of Northern Ireland."

The IRA's cease-fire bid was unveiled to newsmen at a secret meeting place inside the barricaded area of Londonderry. At the meeting were the IRA's chief of staff, English-born Sean MacStiofain, and David O'Connell believed his top lieutenant.

The leaders said they were formally inviting Whitelaw to meet them inside barricaded "Free Derry" with a guarantee of safe conduct.

The aim of the meeting, they said, would be to discuss the IRA's peace terms. These are an end to internment of guerrilla suspects, an amnesty for all jailed or on the run, and the withdrawal of British troops.

Alternatively they offered to meet Whitelaw at a place of his choosing if they were given a guarantee of safe conduct.

The cease-fire would become effective at 5 p.m. Thursday provided Whitelaw had publicly accepted the offer of talks by then. A further demand was that during the cease-fire British troops should call off arrests and arms searches and "harassment of the civilian population."

No immediate reaction was available to these terms.

Air Force Sergeant's Letter To Hughes Prompted Probe

Washington (AP) — A senator has released an Air Force sergeant's account of how reports were falsified to justify unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam.

The letter, made public Tuesday by Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa apparently led to the firing of Gen. John D. Lavelle, who was the top U.S. air commander in Vietnam.

An aide to Hughes said the senator was withholding the sergeant's identity to protect his military career.

Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force chief of staff, told a House Armed Services subcommittee Monday that he recalled Lavelle as commander of the U.S. 7th Air Force in Indochina last March 23 after learning of 28 unauthorized air strikes over North Vietnam.

Lavelle acknowledged to the committee that he probably exceeded his authority in ordering the raids and may have inspired his staff to file false after-action reports.

Lavelle's relief from command, Ryan testified, followed an investigation prompted by a letter to Hughes from an unidentified sergeant.

The sergeant, an intelligence specialist, wrote in the brief letter that he and other members of his unit falsified classified reports for missions over North Vietnam.

"That is," the sergeant said, "we have been reporting that our planes have received hostile reactions such as AAA (Antiaircraft Artillery) and SAM (surface-to-air missile) firings whether they have or not. We have also been falsifying targets struck and bomb damage assessments.

"I have been informed by my immediate (OIC) officer in charge that authorization for this falsification of classified documents comes from secure telephone communications from the deputy of operations, 7th Air Force."

The letter continued: "I do not know where the original authorization comes from and this is my major concern. This same (officer) quipped that the President probably doesn't even know about the situation.

"I am writing this letter to inform you of what is happening and to find out if this falsification of classified documents is legal and proper."

Hughes' aide said the letter was given to Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a secretary of the Air Force during the Truman administration, who subsequently turned it over to Gen. Ryan for investigation.

Amnesia Victim Happy Playing Piano

Key West, Fla. (AP) — A youth who says he can't remember his name or anything else about himself prior to June 4 is happy playing the piano and being a stranger among strangers.

"I'm satisfied where I'm at," he said Tuesday, "but I know someone is looking for me."

The blond-haired youth, believed to be about 17, told police he climbed out of the Gulf of Mexico on the evening of June 4. Key West police Det. Sgt. Earl McCain said the youth's skin was wrinkled severely when he came into police headquarters, from prolonged exposure to water.

McCain said the youth has recuperated physically, but two doctors have termed him the victim of amnesia.

As police try to trace the youth's past he is living in a motel paid for by the Salvation Army and spends his days playing the piano, and sorting old clothes at the Army's center.

When found the youth was wearing a swim suit and had a compass, a knife and a can opener. The police theorized he may have fallen off a fishing boat.

"I took some tests over at the guidance clinic here," the boy said, "but I couldn't give them much. They asked things like 'Do you love your mother or your father or your dog?' Those are partially the questions I couldn't answer." The boy said people in Key West are calling him "a walking geography book. All the way across the United States I can name cities. I can tell you about California, for instance — you got your Lake Tahoe, your Sacramento, your Los Angeles, your Oceanside, your San Diego."

The youth has taken a name for himself — John Doe.

"The way I got that is I was in court, and they said 'you don't have a name so we're going to give you one.' Yes, I'm answering to it."

Aside from his knowledge of geography, the youth has impressed townspeople with his piano and organ playing ability.

"He's really very good," said police dispatcher Pat Hart. The youth tells about his piano playing this way: "I play jazz, blue, honky tonk — the New Orleans music of 20 years ago. I can sit and have a conversation with somebody and play and it drives 'em nuts."

The music comes naturally, John Doe said, but he adds he doesn't know the names of the tunes. He said he didn't recognize the names of some rock stars run off for him, but "I feel I can definitely play rock. The name Louis Armstrong does ring a bell."

The search for his identity has been going on for a week. Some 100 inquiries from concerned parents have been received by police, but none panned out. His fingerprints were sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, but dispatcher Hart said word on the check still is being awaited.

The youth weighs 160 pounds, stands 5 feet 11, has blond hair and blue eyes. He has a long scar on his left thumb.

A three-day check was run to determine whether he was under the influence of drugs. There were no withdrawal symptoms, McCain said.

Federal Bureaucracy Jobs Are Reported Going Begging

Washington (AP) — Jobs in the federal bureaucracy with starting pay of $29,600 a year are going begging, it was reported Tuesday.

"There are just not enough qualified applicants," for the posts of trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board, NLRB Chairman Edward B. Miller said in a statement.

"We need able attorneys with a background of experience in labor and they just aren't showing up," he said in an appeal for applicants. The agency has eight immediate openings and anticipates several more in coming months because of pending retirements.

Trial examiners for the quasi-judicial NLRB conduct hearings on unfair labor practice charges brought by unions, employers and individuals and recommend settlement orders to the five-man board.

"Civil Service Commission requirements include seven years of responsible participation in the preparation, presentation, or hearing of formal cases in administrative court proceedings," the NLRB said in listing qualifications for trial examiners.

"The position is an interesting one," Miller said. "An NLRB trial examiner hears cases all over the country, and has much the same status and independence as a judge."

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

We wish that all the people of Lincoln would read the column by Anthony Lewis which appeared on this page yesterday. He wrote about his visit to some of the rural towns and villages of England's countryside.

He wrote of areas that had maintained their heritage, that had retained their natural beauty and charm, that had held fast to a concept of a community as a good place in which to live. They have done this by virtue of a rigid national planning law which places a value on things, beyond the dollar sign.

"That skeleton of legislation," he wrote, "is really made to work by public support. The people of Aldeburgh or Snape or Coddenham accept that there are values overriding the rights of private property."

And Lewis continued: "So the villages of East Suffolk, remote as they may feel from the world of power, have something to say to America and other places facing pressures of population and affluence. It is possible to resist those pressures. A community can remain true to itself if pride in its integrity is stronger than the desire to exploit private property."

At this week's City Council meeting, we saw an example of what Lewis is talking about. The council failed even to try to override the veto by Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf of two undesirable zoning changes.

Of course, the council gets no credit for courage or intelligent action because the failure stemmed from lack of attendance at the meeting by three members who voted for the changes in the first place and might have been expected to vote for an override. It is sad but true that we are better off sometimes when some members of the council are absent than when they are present.

Such is not true, of course, in the case of Councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis, Councilman Steve Cook and, most of the time, Councilman Harry Peterson.

The above three understand the kind of thing that Lewis was talking about, a community as a place in which to live as opposed to one grubbing in the dirt for every dollar it can get its hands on. When you make the dollar your king, you can throw the meaningful things in life out the window.

In the end, the king betrays you, too, because not even the dollar can survive all alone. Dollars badly spent will cost you more and will tend to erode the very kind of economic viability their champions are trying to promote.

But is a majority of the City Council unconcerned with the future of Lincoln as a good place in which to live? We doubt it; they just don't know any better and they never stop to think long enough to figure things out properly.

They have an idea, for instance, that private property rights transcend all others. They are not only dead wrong, but they don't even bother to relate the property rights of one person with the property rights of another.

They give precedence to commercial property rights over residential rights. They give preference to big investments over small investments. And whether deliberately or not, they give preference to people of influence over people without influence.

In coming weeks, the council will decide on a proposed condominium development on the old St. Thomas Orphanage land on South 27th. A few years back, a similar proposal with even a smaller density of population was turned down by the city as a bad deal in many respects.

But the people proposing it today have done a lot of advance propagandizing and they wield a lot of political and economic influence. If they win, it means an injustice was done to the earlier promoters.

We commend Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf for his effective use of the veto against unwise council zoning decisions. If he did nothing else at all, that alone would make his term in office well worth it to the voters.

'It's Still There'

Support Of Congress Asked

President Nixon sent the fruits of his Moscow summit meeting to Congress for approval Tuesday and top leaders in both parties promised quick action. In a climate at the Capitol much calmer than when the accords were reached by Nixon and Sec. Brezhnev, it looks as if the President's wishes will be fulfilled, and with ease.

Nixon is asking the Senate for early ratification of the treaty limiting the deployment of antiballistic missiles (ABM) to two sites in each country and both houses of Congress to pass a special resolution approving a companion executive agreement that would freeze the total number of land and sea-based offensive missiles in the United States and the Soviet Union at present levels.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott has assured the President that there is "strong bipartisan support" of the agreements signed in Moscow and that prompt Senate action is expected. Scott also said it is his understanding that Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., was prepared to "move expeditiously on the hearings" by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which Fulbright chairs.

Ratification of the defensive missile treaty and on-the-record approval of the offensive weapons freeze agreement have not been seriously doubted. There was a flurry of opposition to the agreements, however, which, if carried to the extremes, could tend to give Nixon or whoever is the next president a less firm footing as he attempts to further tone down the arms race. Hopefully, the agreements reached in Moscow will only be a start.

It is paradoxical that a man whose domestic politics are distrusted by so many people is trusted by so many when he bargains at the highest international levels with so much at stake. But that trust is there. Nixon appears to be one American leader who people feel will not give away too much. Sensing that, it appears that a great majority of Congress will put its stamp of approval on the Moscow summit results and the plans to reverse the insane, spiraling arms race, so long delayed, can be put into practice.

Not Enough Dignity?

Henry Kissinger is more and more becoming a victim of the "swinger" myth. It seems about everythng he does in public or private is magnified or exaggerated and the sobersides are overreacting to it.

Rep. William Scherle, R-Iowa, is one who objects to the Kissinger style, or what he thinks it is. In a letter to constitutents, Scherle said "I'm no prude and I'm no Puritan, but I think a certain amount of dignity ought to correspond to his role. There's a time and a place. Business is business and pleasure is pleasure."

Scherle's complaints were based on reports of Kissinger allowing a Persian belly dancer to perch on his lap while stopping off in Iran following the Moscow summit and of his activities in Warsaw, where, Scherle says, "after signing the joint communique with Polish officials, President Nixon had to tell the former Rockefeller Brothers' 'think tank' associate to quit guzzling champagne and to move along to the next meeting." Both incidents were apparently harmless in nature according to observers on the scene.

Scherle might be reminded that there are more than a few heavy drinkers and playboys in the halls of Congress and in the diplomatic corps. That doesn't excuse Kissinger of tawdry behavior, but is he really guilty of it? We don't think the world's press has proved Kissinger to be either a gigolo beyond redemption or the White House drunk.

He is, however, the architect of President Nixon's foreign policy. He advises the President on a wide range of national security affairs from Indochina to the Middle East to arms limitation to the new China policy. He is largely responsible for Nixon's most innovative approaches and ought to share in the glory if they work out.

History might prove some of Dr. Kissinger's advice to Nixon wrong. But in the meanwhile, his manner of doing things is rather refreshing.

Old Gray Panthers Are On The Prowl

New York — Just when we thought we'd heard from all the oppressed minorities — black, brown, red, student, female, etc. — we discover we overlooked one. Brace yourselves, folks another rebellion is brewing.

Would you believe the Gray Panthers? Led by a little old lady from Philadelphia with gray hair, wrinkles and arthritis?

Well, you had better believe it, Sonny. Because this is no ordinary little old lady in tennis shoes. She sports fashion-plate boots and she's out to liberate the old folks.

Margaret Kuhn, a retired church worker, is 67 and admits it. But her Gray Panthers isn't just another of what she calls "those damned golden-age clubs."

"That's where they push us into rocking chairs and expect us to stay there," she humphs. "Knit that sock . . . crochet that dolly. Asinine. And the trouble is that we do it."

But no more, says "Miss Maggie," in her siren call to all restless oldsters. Junk that rocking chair, forget the knitting needles, and join her revolution.

She's out to "glorify old age." wrinkles, warts and all. And if those TV advertisers think they're in trouble with the Lady Libs, wait till Miss Maggie gets hold of them.

"All that emphasis on youngness," she sniffs. "We're working on a massive campaign against commercials that say, 'Buy this and you'll never look old.' What's wrong with looking old . . . if you ARE old?"

Make no mistake about it, the Gray Panthers are organized. And growing. More than 100 members have already signed on (at $5 a year) and promised their tiny founder they're rarin' to get involved, to get things going for oldsters.

"We are oppressed, no doubt about it," she says. "Society has isolated us because, in a technological system, we can no longer produce. We are brainwashed to accept this as our fate. And in our isolation we are powerless."....

So Miss Maggie is promoting a network of elderly groups all over the country to twist society's arm into recognizing that it loses something valuable when it "retires" the experience and wisdom of the elderly.

"We can teach," she suggests. "We can work with youth groups. We can form watchdog cadres and sit in as the conscience of city councils and state legislatures. Our eyesight may be dimming and our hearing not what it was, but we can still recognize political hanky-panky as well as anybody."

Thanks to the Presbyterian Church, the Gray Panthers have the use of Ghost Ranch, a conference center near Taos, N.M., where they go every October to plan strategy on how to agitate for peace, lobby for more liberal laws for old people, and help each other fight "the loneliness and sheer terror of growing old."

"We're radical," Miss Maggie says. "And we'll march on Washington one of these days. We've already been there to rap with congressmen. After all, we may have lost our looks, but we haven't lost our vote."

Social commitment isn't the only thing that revs up aging motors.

"One of the worst forms of discrimination against us," she complains, "is that society thinks sexuality is only for the young. Do I have a boy friend? Right on! He's male and I'm female . . . we're both old . . . we relate to each other . . . and isn't that a beautiful thought?"

North Vietnamese Targets Now More Available; Le May's Formula For Bombing Results Recalled

WASHINGTON—A survey of reliable and experienced military sources in Vietnam by Charles Mohr of the New York Times convinced him that only "the enormous use of American air power . . . had prevented a South Vietnamese collapse early in April."

Last week, B-52's resumed pattern-bombing raids in the panhandle region of North Vietnam, even while the number of fighter-bomber raids on the North also was being increased. The number of American fighter-bombers and aircraft carriers in the Indochina war has been tripled, and B-52's have been quadrupled. These increases far more than offset the continuing withdrawals of ground forces from South Vietnam.

Moreover, Pentagon officials say publicly that more North Vietnamese targets are now available to them than was the case during the earlier air offensive waged by President Johnson. "In '68 we really didn't pursue this to the end," Adm. W. P. Mack said at a briefing last week. "There are many fewer targets off limits now." Nor, apparently, is President Nixon exercising the personal control of target selection that Johnson did.

The broader air campaign is being waged at a time when Nixon also has sealed with mines the North Vietnamese harbors. The two steps obviously go together, and make up the most determined American effort yet to deny North Vietnam the supplies—particularly those shipipped over water from other nations—either to maintain the war in the South or to sustain civilian needs and morale in the North.

Naturally, the dollar cost is going up too. At a time when potential political opponents like Senators McGovern and Humphrey are talking about the need to reduce defense expenditures, the cost of waging Nixon's lethal new air campaign is probably going to double the war budget, according to Secretary of Defense Laird—and may drive it even higher, some other experts believe.

All this may satisfy some of those war hawks who wonder only why it wasn't done earlier, but in the minds of others it raises some questions—or it ought to, if the length, cost and horrors of this war have not yet numbed their sensibilities.

If Mohr is correct, for instance, that American air power was the primary ingredient in slowing Hanoi's Easter offensive (that it has been stopped is not yet certain), then all Nixon's efforts do not mean that South Vietnam is any more viable as a nation or Saigon's army any more effective in defending that nation than they were before the long, costly process of Vietnamization began nearly three years ago.

In order to achieve whatever is being achieved, moreover, the most incredible and wanton destruction is having to be delivered wholesale, not just in North Vietnam but in South Vietnam, which we are supposed to be saving. It is not for nothing that the word "ecocide," in reference to American operations in Vietnam, drifts insistently about the Stockholm conference on world environmental matters.

Of the millions killed or made homeless, there seems to be little if any thought at the Pentagon or the White House. Since only seven American Navy men had been lost during the current bombing campaign, Admiral Mack was even able to say at his briefing that "this is a pretty good way to fight a war." Do only the American dead matter?

There were two indications of what was afoot in Nixon's May 8 speech, when he announced that he was mining the harbors of the North. First, in what was later billed as a generous peace offer, he offered to withdraw all Americans from South Vietnam and cease all acts of force in Indochina, in return for release of American POW's and a cease-fire. Many overlooked that this meant the North Vietnamese would have to lay down their arms in a cease-fire under international supervision, while the Saigon government remained in power. That would have been, in effect, for Hanoi to surrender its own objective, and to concede the American objective.

The other indication was Nixon's analysis of his own options—"immediate withdrawal of all American forces, continued attempts at negotiation or decisive military action to end the war." Rejecting the first two, he said he had chosen the latter—which now is being seen in action.

So, in the end, Nixon's 1968 campaign plan to "end the war and win the peace" has become an effort to bomb North Vietnam into submitting to Washington's terms; given the tenacity Hanoi and its people have shown in the past, and apparently still show, that may prove to be about the same as General Le May's celebrated formula: "Bomb them back into the Stone Age."

In the interest of the American public, I would like to quote excerpts from the statement made on the Senate floor on June 1, 1972, by Senator Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) on "The Moscow Arms Agreements."

Before I begin, I'd like the public also to know that the briefings in which most of this information was revealed were closed, excluding some 20 to 25 congressmen who had been vocal critics of the arms limitation agreements.

After the usual social amenities, Senator Jackson stated: "I am sorry to say that all we have had up until now is the elaborate stage management of a vague, confusing and contradictory collection of rumor, announcements and background briefings that leave the American people no clear notion as to what has been agreed upon in Moscow.

" . . . This much, however, has clearly emerged; the agreements do not 'freeze' the strategic arms balance in any sense of the word 'freeze' I have ever heard. Until the President makes public the still private understandings with the Soviets, without which the agreements are impossible to interpret, we will not know precisely what is 'frozen' — and what is actually warmed up. At first glance, most of the freezing appears to be on the American side while most of the warming up is on the Soviet side.

" . . . In the last several days, we have heard these numbers . . . The crucial question for the nation and for the cause of world peace is whether these members add up to stable parity or unstable inferiority.

"It may clear the air to discuss some of them.

"(a) 1,054 — this is the maximum number of land-based ICBM's the United States is permitted to retain under the agreement.

"(b) 1,618 — this is the maximum number of ICBM's the Soviet Union is permitted . . . 'given our understanding' . . . I emphasize 'our understanding' because the figure . . . is a U.S. intelligence estimate — not a Soviet-supplied number. This vagueness . . . is most unfortunate and can lead only to uncertainty and possible tensions.

"(c) 710 — this is the maximum number of submarine-launched ballistic missiles the United States is permitted to deploy . . . .

"(d) 1,016 — this is the number of submarine-launched ballistic missiles the Soviet Union is permitted.

"(e) 84 — the total permissible number of Soviet missile-firing submarines that can be deployed. . .

"(f) 44 — the total permissible number of American misile-firing submarines.

"(g) 313 — this is the maximum number of 'heavy' ICBM's the Soviet Union is permitted to deploy . . . this gain is a U.S. Intelligence estimate.

"(h) ZERO — this is the . . . number of 'heavy' ICBM's the United States is permitted to deploy under the agreement.

"These numbers . . . are merely representative of the thrust of the agreements . . . which is to confer on the Soviet Union the authority to retain or deploy a number of weapons based on land and at sea that exceeds our own in every category, and by a 50% margin. Is this parity?

". . . In no area covered by the agreement is the United States permitted parity with the Soviet Union."

Senator Edmund S. Muskie (D-Me.) who also was not invited to the briefing said he was curious about Nixon's "let's wait and see what happens" reference to the talks on Vietnam.

"There was an implication they might have been fruitful in some way he (Nixon) did not disclose," Muskie said.

I question the policy of the Nixon administration, of holding briefings on so serious a matter and "locking out" congressmen who might be critical of all or any part of the agreements. Is this the way of a democracy which is supposed to be "of the people, for the people and by the people," with freedom of speech, including the right to dissent?

I simply and strongly urge everyone who agrees that this agreement is one-sided enough to be a threat in our future to please, today — time is important — write your own congressmen and plead that they do not ratify this agreement which in a few short years could assure Soviet domination over the United States, or worse.

If you can afford it, at all, send a telegram. We did. I ask no more than I am willing to do myself.

How can anyone steal from a grave? I had a large wreath on my husband's grave on a wire standard in Wyuka cemetery. We were out there Tuesday, May 30 and it was still on the grave. Then we went out again on June 6, and it was gone.

I hope whoever took it will take care of it. It was beautiful.

Money Ruling

Burwell, Neb.

Mr. Nixon was quoted in Life Magazine as saying, "Can't Congress think of anything else but Vietnam?"

So again he intimated that the Vietnam war didn't worry him, that it was the world peace with Russia and China that is the big deal. I wonder what the soldiers would think about that.

On June 7 an aide to Nixon said, in effect, that this administration would arrange for a program that Congress wouldn't have to approve. It begins to look like a one-man rule. Secretary of War Laird didn't seem to have much confidence in the Russian-China experiment, as he said the war budget would be raised much higher. What is he afraid of —Russia and-or China — after Nixon's wonderful trip to both countries?

To analyze the whole mess, I would say that Nixon is trading the lives of our boys for re-election. At least we can save the cost of congressmen, as we won't need them when Nixon gets his program going. If he gets re-elected, he will have everything sewed up, from the attorney general to the Supreme Court, inclusive.

We are going to have to stop money from ruling our country, as it does now.

Back To Freedom

Mountain Brook, Ala.

Let's get back to freedom.

Let's return to that traditional American principle which says an individual has the right to control his own life as long as he doesn't actively interfere with the rights of others — but which also says a man must be responsible for his actions and that criminals should be held accountable for their crimes.

Let's get back to freedom.

Let's get back to that concept which says a man has a right to keep most of what he earns, and that no able-bodied, reasonably intelligent adult for whom work is available has a right to live off the sweat of another man's brow.

Let's get back to freedom.

Let's get back to the precept that children are the precious responsibility of their parents, and not the tools of government, to be pulled and hauled about to suit the whims of social manipulators and experimenters.

Let's get back to freedom.

Let's get back to the idea that men may worship as they please, and away from the twisted legalisms that says atheists may forbid little children to pray in school.

Justice

Lincoln, Neb.

Why should a football player have priority over all other decent boys who break the law but live up to their just punishment? Why should he be relieved of just punishment because he is a football player? Is being No. 1 on Coach Devaney's team and for the football fans more important than being an upright citizen and obeying the law and taking his punishment like other offenders do?

A son joined the naval air force at 19. He was in training three years. He came home a lieutenant j.g. He was a fast driver, had too many citations, was fined $100 and had his driver's license taken away for six months. He paid his fine, turned his license plates in and took his medicine like a man. He was called back in the service, fought in the Korean war until the end. He stayed in the service for 25 years and is now retired.

A grandson was a little too speedy and had his license revoked for a full year. He also took his lot in stride. He served his assignment in Vietnam.

Has Johnny done as much for our good old U.S.A.? Perhaps he does not love it enough. If he is an example set before the youth of this troubled world, may God help them.

Great Men Lost

Wilber, Neb.

We believe Nebraska has one of the greatest governors of modern times. It seems to us that Governor J. J. Exon is out there digging for all of us and not just a few select groups. The citizens of Nebraska should look around to see not just what the governor can do for us but also what we can do to help the governor.

One thing is to back him up on the subjects and points with which we agree and to let everyone else know about it. Another is to go out and vote, and this is the year for it. We should each vote for the ones whom we believe will do the most good.

Another gentleman we dig is Senator McGovern. We believe he is a great man and comes from the north, Sioux country.

What is most regrettable is the withdrawal from the race of Senator Harris of Oklahoma. It was because of financial difficulties. In this nation, such a man should have a chance to run for election. Maybe, just maybe, because of such difficulties, our nation has lost some of its greatest men.

Women Here Share Experiences In International Group

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

One does not need to travel to learn firsthand about other parts of the world, members of Lincoln's International Women's Group claim. "The world comes to us through our members," they say.

The group dates back to the late-1940's when the U of N Faculty Women's Club formed an International Friendship Group to help wives of foreign students with English and with American customs in their everyday living experiences.

It was revitalized in the early 1960's with the help of Mrs. Rowena Boykin, foreign student advisor at the university and several interested faculty wives. Known as the International Conversation Group, the group focused heavily on providing some social interaction as well as orientation to the American way of life for foreign students' wives.

The process of growth within the group has transformed what was once a "helping" situation into a "sharing" experience.

Mrs. Ada Munson, one of the original faculty wives who is still an active participant, views the group as "truly an international organization." She went on to say that it is no longer "a group of American women doing something to and for foreign women," but rather a group where everyone participates on a "completely equal basis."

Part of Whole World

The "continuing force" of the group, as Mrs. Munson sees it, is the social outlet and feeling of being part of the whole world community that the women feel.

She especially noted the interaction among the foreign women who develop friendships with each other, sharing common problems of adjustment and adaptation. Once the initial barriers are broken, there is a "sort of magic" in the way real friendships develop, added Mrs. Munson.

One of the unique features of the group, continued Mrs. Munson, is that Americans and foreigners from both the University and the general community belong to the organization. Although it was University-oriented at the start, community people have become active and vital participants of the group.

Regular group meetings are held on the first and third Wednesdays each month at the First Presbyterian Church, 17 and F, in the mornings. For those women with children a nursery is available for both infants and toddlers. For the working women there is an evening group which meets once a month at different members' homes.

Planning Needed

While not heavily structured, the meetings require a bit of prior planning, according to Jan Jaecks, planning chairman of the group.

Among the activities have been talks by outside speakers, such as doctors and home economists, folk dancing and a "South American Day."

Other meetings are spent discussing the role of women in different countries, child-rearing practices, education and childrens' books, among other topics. Some of the sessions are "intellectually-oriented" and others are just "fun" noted Mrs. Jaecks.

From these larger meetings, smaller interest groups have broken off for additional get-togethers, centering around cooking classes or handicraft sessions. A singing group has also been formed, which entertains the whole group on special occasions, and has performed at some nursing homes upon request.

In addition to the regular meetings the group holds a get-together tea in September to welcome any new members. A pot-luck dinner with husbands takes place in early winter, followed by an annual spring luncheon and a family summer picnic. Once a year a talent show is held where women exhibit the different kinds of handiwork they have done, as well as skills in singing and dancing which they want to share with the group.

Reauons Vary

The reasons for joining International Women are varied for both foreigners and Americans. In some ways the group is a "welcoming" agent for new-comers to Lincoln, providing a vehicle for friendship. Many American women who have lived abroad and have been treated kindly there wish to reciprocate the help and friendship to foreigners visiting here. Others who have not traveled enjoy broadening their horizons with international relationships.

Mrs. Naomi Fast, an active member in the group, views her relations with foreign women in the group as a "two-way" street.

One day she taught an Indian woman how to eat strawberries—"you don't have to remove the seeds on the outside"—and the next day she was learning to make "sounds" when eating Japanese noodle soup, a way of expressing enjoyment and participation.

Mrs. Fast has also planted an international garden with seeds she has received from her foreign friends.

A past president of the group, Mrs. Sally Stoddard, feels she "always learns something" when the group gets together, aside from "pure enjoyment."

One member described International Women as a very "accepting" group. Although women with language problems are shy at first, she noted that they would "never end up in a corner alone."

Blind Inmate Bemoans Fate

Huntingdon, Pa. (AP) — A 37-year-old inmate of the State Correctional Institution here, blind for five years, says he would rather give away his life to science, than stay alive in the dark and sightless world of bars, brick walls, and unknown dangers.

"I would rather be dead," said James Harbold, of Dover, Pa., convicted and sentenced to life in 1962 in the death of his girl friend.

He now sits alone in his cell, fearful of the unseen dangers outside.

Harbold was blinded when he drank what he thought was "white lightning," a contraband prison brew, purchased from another prisoner. It turned out to be cleaning fluid.

Since then he has been trying to have his life sentence commuted to relieve him of what he considers cruel and unusual punishment.

His face is scarred from running into obstacles. Harbold said he hadn't been outside his cell block since last July 4.

"I got busted in the face by a softball and haven't been outside since," he said.

He also told of being attacked, sometimes homosexually, by fellow prisoners.

"I may be blind physically but I'm not mentally," the former Marine said. "They come up behind me, take my cane . . . a lot are just punks and I give them the back of my hand."

Huntingdon Supt. Erskind Deramus said, "Harbold should be in some sort of special facility, somewhere where he can feel more comfortable."

But Deramaus also said that Harbold's charges about maltreatment at the hands of guards and other prisoners were "mostly" unfounded.

"The authorities all talk about my attitude," Harbold said. "They got 100 labels on me . . . arrogant, paranoid . . . if I am, I have a right to be."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

"A meal without wine is like a day without sun."

We've been driving along the Loire River. Silver and sand and fields of scarlet poppies. This is the chateaux country, and one of the most imposing is at Amboise where I stopped for gas.

It is an enormous castle on a hill. All cone towers and great windows. I got a postcard which said it was built by Charles VIII, also known as Philippe something. (A police alias?)

Anyway, Charles brought in a bunch of foreign decorator cats. And he built himself a princely scatter. I wonder what a contractor would charge to build one today.

☆ ☆ ☆

It staggers the imagination. But that is not why I am staggering, Claude.

They make distinctive wines in the Loire valley. They are very proud of them, and insist that you drink a lot of it.

"A meal without wine is like a day without sun," said the headwaiter.

We stopped at the Hostellerie du Chateau in Chaumont-sur-Loire. The chateau on the hill belonged to Madame de Stael. A Jackie Onassis of her day, I seem to recall. She muscled around in politics.

The specialty wines of the Hostellerie are Sauvignon and Cabernet. So we had the white Sauvignon.

"It goes well with the salmon," said the waiter approvingly. "Later Cabernet. With the cheese."

☆ ☆ ☆

The French do not drink three-martini lunches. They drink a lot of wine.

"Who loves wine, loves life," said the waiter pouring a big glass.

There is a temperance movement in France. France has more alcoholics than any other country. The temperance people blame it on wine. Children get wine with meals—watered down. But once I saw a 12-year-old knock back half a bottle of champagne. Poured by his proud father.

(It was the kid's birthday. So maybe that's unusual. Anyway, he nipped off half a jug of bubbly without batting an eye.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Wine is serious business as well as a thing of daily living. France collects $600 million on wine taxes. It is the leading agricultural export to the tune of more than $300 million.

Wine business gives jobs to 2.5 million Frenchmen.

The wine people would like to see the French drink more wine. Though if you eat with Frenchmen, you can't see how they could pour more wine into him with a funnel.

After taking your order, the waiter says: "And what will you have to drink?" He is not talking about Coca Cola.

☆ ☆ ☆

A half bottle for one, a large bottle for two is considered the correct amount of wine with the meal. If you have white wine to start, you must order red with cheese.

"The cheese is insulted by a white wine," the waiter explained.

(They also have a saying here: "Wine is the enemy of the salad." Don't drink wine with salads. The vinegar destroys it. This saying is not said often. Especially by wine people.)

The wine with the cheese must be a light red. A heavy Burgundy won't do. So it's likely that with cheese you must order another bottle. Else the waiter will have a fit.

☆ ☆ ☆

What kind of wine did they drink in the chateaux? Same as me probably. The Loire wines are very good.

Life was toujours gai at the chateaux. They were lively times.

They did not have garbage disposals or indoor plumbing—it was all, "Chuck it in the Loire, Mother." But there weren't any tourists. And nobody had heard of ecology.

"And after dinner, a cognac," said the waiter. "For it is of the grape, too."

And so I paid the bill and staggered out. (Where did I put the car keys?)

Careful Driver Killed In Crash

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI) — A 67-year-old rancher who always was extra careful at railroad crossings because his parents died in a train-car collision, was killed when a locomotive smashed into his truck, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A crewman on the Western Pacific train said Sterling W. Jones, Sacramento, seemed to hesitate before driving onto the tracks in the path of the locomotive, which was traveling 60 miles per hour.

Jones, parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jones were killed in 1945 when their car was struck by a train at a crossing near Gridley.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Capricorn can be blunt, is determined, appears calculating, but often is a prisoner of love. Natives of this zodiacal sign are ambitious, have great sense of timing and have a life plan outlined at relatively early age. Capricorn is physically attracted to Taurus, makes money with Aquarius, travels with Virgo, often marries Cancer and argues with Pisces. Capricorn seldom forgets a wrong, can play waiting game and surprises with creative abilities. Capricorn gets job done and works well with Gemini, is aided in fulfilling ambitions by Libra. Some famous persons born under Capricorn include Henry Miller, Howard Hughes, Elvis Presley, Ethel Merman and Faye Dunaway.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Creative efforts succeed. Decision is due involving member of opposite sex. You stay or go, commit or vacillate. However, it is not likely you can hold middle ground. Element of timing favors actions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What appears to be an obstacle will rebound in your favor. Details require additional attention. Gemini and Virgo are apt to be involved. Specifically, need is to enhance security. Improve living quarters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent now is on short journeys, reuniting with family member. Check calls, messages. Be sure you are being correctly quoted. Taurus and Libra individuals are in picture. Stress versatility and humor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Spotlight on money and how to hold on to it. Pisces person could play key role. Tighten budget. Get accounting. Take inventory. Sources of income will be more varied if you are perceptive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Cycle high; take initiative. Make contacts. Blow your own horn. Others feel you have what it takes — but they want to be told. Accommodate — do the telling! Fine for starting projects, developing relationships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obstacle in special relationship, project could come to light. Don't brood about past. Now is time to outline future goal. Success indicated through work in conjunction with special group, organization.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent is on romantic interests, unique relationships, money from occupational endeavors. Display original techniques. Strive to lead rather than follow. Bring forth creative resources. Leo is in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Now you get facts on table. Those who make promises are forced to put up or go away. Accent is on achievement and how you relate to professional superiors. Aquarius and Cancer persons are involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec 21): Forces appear scattered. You are asked to do many things — too many at once. Sagittarian is in picture. Accent is on travel, philosophy, publishing, long-distance calls and long-range planning.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Investment potential should be analyzed. Get aid from expert. Dig deep. Reject what is superficial. Applies also to personal relationships. Stress now is on what is obscured, hidden or mysterious.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 18): Spotlight is on partnerships, joint efforts and marriage. If single, you may be asked to commit yourself. If married, mate may make unusual demand. Married or single, this is time to observe, learn and decide.

PISCES (Feb 19-March 20): Make peace at home. Study Aquarius message. Be diplomatic. Improve relations with Taurus, Libra individuals. Get essential tasks out of way early. Check medical, dental appointments. Take nothing for granted.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, somewhat of a busybody, charming, often the life of the party, prone to involvement in affairs of heart. Social life is going full swing, in July you will make new contacts—and be on "different" wave length. You now have much to do with Sagittarius.

(To find out more about yourself and astrology, order Sydney Omarr's 50-page booklet, "The Truth About Astrology." Send birthday and 75 cents to Omarr Booklet, Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.)

What is the law requirement regarding toilets for workman at construction sites?

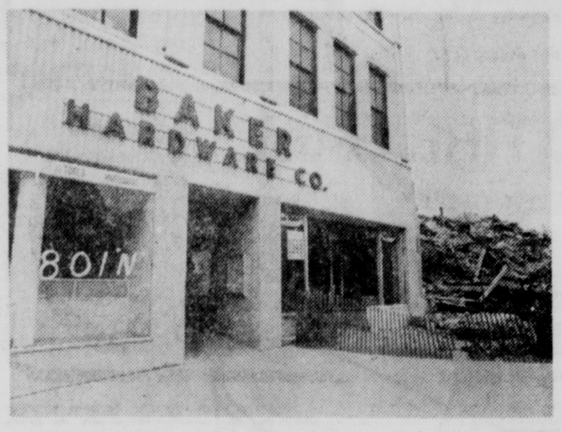
—Nearby, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: City Ordinance 8.60.010 states that "suitable and sufficient toilet facilities" must be provided and connected, when possible, to a sanitary sewer. When this is not possible, a privy or suitable substitute must be provided for workmen.

Report abuses of the law to the city attorney's office.

I thought the Baker Hardware building at 9th and O was also going to be razed. It's untouched.

—Watcher, Lincoln



ACTION LINE: More time was needed to move to a new Baker Hardware location. The move is completed, so watch for the building to come tumbling down like the old Lincoln Hotel.

Can petition circulators be hired to get an issue on the ballot?

—R. E., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: No, says the secretary of state's office. Only expenses can be paid. Another rule for your information: if the circulator is not bonded, the person must confine circulation activites to his or her county of residence.

Does it require a two-thinrds vote or a simple majority for the City Council to override a mayoral veto?

—P. L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Harold Springer, city clerk, says it takes a two-thirds vote, which means five affirmative votes from the seven-member council, to override a veto.

I saw a huge new automobile with Nevada license plates which had nothing on them except the word "Pass." I think this is University of Nebraska-Lincoln football passing star David Humm of Las Vegas, Nev. Am I correct?

—M. B., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: No, you are not correct. The 1971 Cadillac you saw is registered to a man named Passell (hence the name Pass) from Reno, Nev., based on a report from the Nevada Motor Vehicle Department.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln security patrol has tightened its surveillance in view of the recent rapes on campus. Is it true that the patrol has found it necessary to issue .38 caliber hollow point shells as ammunition? Such bullets fragment upon entry.

—Lawrence Molczyk, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: This is nothing new, says Gail Gade, campus security chief. Standard equipment for law enforcement officers includes .38 caliber hollow point ammunition, he says.

If you feel further discussion is necessary, contact Gade. Or you can contact the person under which Gade operates, Dr. Miles Tommeraasen, the UNL business and finance director.

When is the date we 19-year-olds can purchase a drink?

—Waiting, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: You can go to the corner drug store now and purchase a drink — a drink of soda pop, that is.

If you are writing about an alcoholic beverage drink, the law allowing 19 years as the age of majority goes into effect July 6.

Decision On Insurance May Prompt Chiropractor Lawsuits

Lincoln attorney Lawrence Murphy said Tuesday a decision handed down by the State Insurance Department may indirectly prompt a separate lawsuit involving insurance claims from chiropractors.

The department, this week, held that a 1969 law requiring health and accident insurance companies to honor chiropractor claims is not retroactive.

Murphy said he has no quarrel with that decision and though it could be appealed, he didn't think it would be.

"I wouldn't think so," he said, "it was merely a clarification we had asked for.

But, he said, a related question has arisen from the ruling which centers on whether all group insurance policies written before the law's effective date are excused from paying claims.

"Therefore, there is a possibility in the future a lawsuit may be filed to determine whether group health and accident policies are outside the law," Murphy said.

New Policies Cover

The department specifically held that companies must honor claims submitted on policies issued after the law went into effect. But claims need not be paid on previously-written policies.

The case decided by the department involved the Pyramid Life Insurance Co. and the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Hearings were held on the case, lodged by the chiropractors, last August.

Examiner E. Ben Nelson, in his opinion, said the law did not contain a retroactive provision and even if it did, the U.S. Constitution would bar its implementation.

"The question now is, can an insurance company avoid this law for all time if it has issued a group policy prior to the time it (the law went into effect?" Murphy said.

As far as individual policies are concerned, he said, the department's ruling has cleared that up.

As to group policies, the attorney said, it appears that if a policy is changed or extended in any way, in the eyes of the law it becomes a new policy and chiropractor claims could be honored.

A test case would decide that issue, he said.

Murphy added, however, court action would be a last resort measure to be decided if private negotiations ultimately fall through.

"Most insurance companies, I must say, are very helpful and we are hopeful this matter can be resolved outside of court," he said.

Court Ruling Is Asked On School District Act

By United Press International

The state Supreme Court was asked Tuesday to declare unconstitutional a portion of a 1969 statute restricting the formation of new school districts.

In a brief filed with the high court on behalf of Amanda C. Bodenstedt and others, attorney John Addison argued the legislation was misleading and contrary to a section of the state Constitution detailing how legislation must be enacted.

The brief contends because the purpose of the bill, LB1377, was not contained in the title of the bill as required by the state Constitution, many persons who would have otherwise been interested were unaware of its long-reaching effects.

"Although school legislation is one of the prime sources of controversy at the present time," the brief said, "it would appear that a large number of people who might have been interested in this type of legislation were unaware of the impact of LB1377.

The case is an appeal from a hearing before the Wayne County superintendent in 1971 on petitions to transfer all property from one school district in the county to two others — in effect, merging the districts.

The superintendent's decision that the property transfers were prohibited under the 1969 statute was upheld in Wayne County District Court and the petitioners appealed.

The law says in part no Class 1 district which contracts for instruction of its pupils with Class 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 districts after June 1, 1970, shall merge with another Class 1 district.

But if the terms of the bill were strictly applied, the brief argued, "every school district which had a contract with a Class 2, 3, 4 or 5 district after the effective date of the act would be a violation thereof."

Reconsideration Asked On Part Of Ruling On Kiernan

The Attorney General's office Tuesday asked the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations to reconsider certain parts of its decision upholding the dismissal of a Roads Department employe.

Assistant Atty. Gen. James Duggan specifically questioned whether the court had jurisdiction in the matter and whether a summons had been served correctly. Duggan did not request a reconsideration of the court's conclusion based on the testimony.

In its May decision, the court rejected the state's contention that the court has no jurisdiction, but ruled in favor of the state in upholding the firing of Richard Kiernan.

Notice Of Appeal Filed In NU Mandatory Fees Case

A notice of appeal was on file with the Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday of a case involving the collection of mandatory student fees from University of Nebraska students.

The appeal notice was filed by attorneys for students Ralph Larson, Bruce Wimmer, Frederick J. Otto and Wayne Stunkel.

The suit was originally filed in District Court against the University of Nebraska Board of Regents and other state officials asking an injunction be issued to stop mandatory collections in favor of a voluntary program.

The Lancaster District Court, however, denied the injunction request and the students asked that the lower court's decision be reversed.

Student fees are collected at the time tuition is paid and the funds are used to finance student-related activities on campus.

Road Taxes Are 33.8% Of Revenue

Highway-user taxes accounted for 33.8% of Nebraska's tax revenues in fiscal 1971, according to Charles E. Chace, Executive Director, of the Nebraska Petroleum Council. On a nationwide basis, he added, such taxes accounted for 19% of total state tax receipts.

Citing figures compiled by the U.S. Bureau of the Census, Chace said that in fiscal 1971, Nebraska collected $99,537,000 in highway user taxes. The state's total tax revenues during that 20-month period amounted to approximately $294,447,000, Chace pointed out.

The principal source of highway-user taxes, Chace reported, was levies on motor fuels. In fiscal 1971, he said, such taxes accounted for $69,441,000, which represented 23.6% of the state's total tax receipts.

In addition to the motor fuel tax revenues, Chace said, Nebraska took in $28,679,000 in motor vehicle registration fees and $1,417,000 in drivers' license fees in fiscal 1971.

Western Electric To Put Up New Building In Iowa

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — Plans were announced for a new $5 million materials management center to be constructed by Western Electric Corporation about 12 miles northeast of Council Bluffs near Underwood, Iowa.

Don Procknow, New York, president of Western Electric, made the announcement at a luncheon at the Lakeshore Country Club. Western Electric is the manufacturing arm of the Bell Telephone System. Iowa Gov. Robert Ray was among guests at the luncheon.

Procknow said a new concept in distribution of supplies will be tried out at the material management center to be constructed here, first of its kind in the United States. It is designed to provide service and supplies to operating companies in a 13-state area.

BOTH EARS

It is a remarkable fact that when many hard of hearing persons use a hearing aid for both ears, instead of only one ear, they hear not just twice as well, but three or four times as well!

Binaurai or "stereo" hearing—the use of an aid for each ear—is now a practical reality with MAICO ear level hearing aids.

The use of two ears instead of one can add nearly 6 decibels to your hearing.

This means you'll enjoy improved understanding of speech in noisy places; more easily determine the direction of sound; and hear more comfortably with both ears "sharing" the work of hearing.

Let me send you a free brochure by MAICO showing the different types of aids that can be used for binaural fitting.

Improved U.S.-India Relations Believed Possible

New Delhi (AP) — John Connally's visit to the subcontinent may prove to be the long-awaited catalyst to generate an improvement in relations between the United States and India.

These relations continue poor, reflecting a deteriorating pattern of bilateral diplomacy in the past year.

Any direct move by Connally to improve relations with India and Bangladesh could hurt him in Pakistan, the last stop of his subcontinent tour.

Connally, however, will have the advantage of visiting the subcontinent after a meeting June 28 of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and the Pakistani president, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. If they achieve success at their summit, and the enmity between India and Pakistan lessens, he may find his task easier.

Senior India officials seemed pleased that Connally is coming.

"We hope it will be the beginning of a serious dialogue between India and the United States," said the Foreign Ministry's spokesman.

Last February India cold-shouldered President Nixon's proposal for a dialogue to help improve relations.

The spokesman described Connally as a "bright and sparkling man," leaving little doubt that he will be warmly welcomed. He will call on Mrs. Gandhi and Foreign Minister Swaran Singh during a 48-hour visit.

According to Indian sources, Mrs. Gandhi will respond favorably to any "genuine desire" by the United States to settle its differences with this country.

India appears to be mostly concerned about what the United States is doing in neighboring Bangladesh and Pakistan.

Indian leaders have indirectly accused the United States and China of sowing discontent in Bangladesh toward India. There also is concern in New Delhi that Washington may permit the transfer of U.S.-supplied arms from some Moslem nations to Pakistan.

The touchy issue of U.S. economic aid to India, partly suspended during the India-Pakistan war and not yet resumed, will likely come up while the former Treasury head is here.

Connally may want to explore India's relationship with the Soviet Union. They signed a 20-year friendship treaty last August.

Speech, Hearing Center Planned

. . . BOYS TOWN-FUNDED INSTITUTE TO COST $30 MILLION

Boys Town (AP) — The board of directors of Boys Town, the "City of Little Men" located near Omaha, has approved a $30 million institute to treat, rehabilitate and educate children who suffer from speech and hearing disorders.

The board approval came Tuesday for the Boys Town Institute for the Study and Treatment of Hearing and Speech disorders which a board director, the Most Rev. Daniel E. Sheehan, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Omaha, said will "tie in with the Boys Town idea of rehabilitation."

The institute was one of several projects considered, Archbishop Sheehan said, toward the "expansion of the basic concept of Boys Town —service to youth."

The announcement followed earlier published reports that Boys Town had a net worth of at least $209 million. The report was compiled from figures filed with the Internal Revenue Service.

Archbishop Sheehan explained that whether the financing for the institute will become a part of the overall Boys Town endowment or will have funds specifically earmarked for use will be a legal matter to be decided by the board at a later date.

John E. Bordley

Patrick E. Brookhouser

Care And Housing

The institute will include a facility for the care and housing of some 50 handicapped boys and girls on the Boys Town campus while the Criss Institute campus at Creighton University, Omaha, will serve as a comprehensive diagnostic center for hearing and speech disorders, as well as a facility for medical-surgical rehabilitation of communicatively handicapped children.

Officials estimated 6,000 handicapped children will go through the diagnostic and treatment center each year.

Dr. Patrick E. Brookhouser, Baltimore, Md., will serve as the director of the institute. He said Tuesday it is hoped the institute will be in full operation within three years.

Dr. Brookhouser currently serves in the department of otolaryngology at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine.

Staff, Construction

Archbishop Sheehan said an initial $1 million will be used for staff with an anticipated $10 million to be used for capital construction.

Dr. John E. Bordley, emeritus Andelot professor of laryngology and otology at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, praised the effort because it would bring scientists, researchers and others together to provide a total concept of treatment and rehabilitation for children with speech and hearing handicaps.

Archbishop Sheehan emphasized "our main thrust is at the disadvantaged" and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Nicholas Wegner, Boys Town director, said the institute will be "dedicated to the goal that every child" might hear and speak.

Selection Committees

Officials said patients will be admitted through a qualified selection committee according to inability to afford care at other institutions, potential for rehabilitation and suitability of the particular communication handicap for inclusion in ongoing teaching and research programs.

Dr. Brookhauser said the next step will be to gather ideas and plans for the institute, then to gather personnel and then to work on the architectural plans for the facilities.

He described the institute as "very much of a breakthrough" for training and teaching of handicapped children in this area and lauded it as being unique in its field.

"No other institution has ever merged specialists together to provide rehabilitation," he said.

Dr. Bordley said the effort has "created a whole new ideal, in that people can be useful and happy citizens."

EXPLOSION SHATTERS HOME

A leaking gas line behind a Fullerton home reduced the structure to a shambles with a Tuesday morning blast that broke windows within a one-block radius. The sole occupant of the cement-block home, Bill Trotter, 51, reportedly suffered severe burns on his hands and legs and was listed in serious condition at Veterans Hospital in Grand Island after passers-by heard his cries and pulled him from the wreckage.

Hog Men Urged Not To Panic

Nebraska swine producers Tuesday were advised not to hit the panic button after disclosure of the first hog cholera outbreak in the state in 18 months, but were urged to be prompt in reporting any sick pigs to veterinarians.

Dr. Alex Hogg, University of Nebraska Extension veterinarian, said producers should be on the lookout for any suspicious symptoms, especially in herds adjacent to Adams County, where the oubreak was reported by the State Department of Agriculture Monday afternoon.

The outbreak, if not controlled, could cost Nebraska its hog cholera-free status achieved in October 1971, Hogg said. It is hoped quarantine procedures instituted by state animal health officials will stamp out the outbreak, Hogg said. If the hog cholera-free status is lost, it could not be regained for another year, he noted.

The need for producers to be vigilant is important not only in terms of stopping further threat of the disease, but also in assuring that indemnity will be paid in case cholera is confirmed, Hogg said. Producers are paid for animals destroyed to eliminate any cholera carriers, he explained — but only for those hogs alive during the first visit of an inspector.

Clinical symptoms, he said, which producers should watch for include: diarrhea, poor-doing animals, abortions, stillborn pigs, mummified pigs, and weak pigs and "shaker" pigs.

These symptoms, he explained, can develop with or without the typical or classical symptoms such as a high mortality rate.

The fluorescent antibody test, developed by NU veterinary scientists, is recognized as a valid test for both acute and chronic cases of cholera, Hogg said.

The herd from the farm near Holstein which constituted the latest Nebraska outbreak was tested both by NU veterinary scientists and the National Animal Disease Laboratory at Ames, Iowa, before the presence of cholera was declared confirmed.

The importation of feeder pigs to the Corn Belt for finishing is a continuing concern from a cholera prevention standpoint, Hogg said.

The elimination of vaccination has removed one of the means of perpetuating the disease, he said, but at the same time leaves the entire swine population susceptible to hog cholera.

Northwestern Bell Claims Executive Salaries Justified

Omaha (AP) —A spokesman for Northwestern Bell Telephone Company said Tuesday salaries paid its executives can be justified because of the size of the company and amounts paid top officials of other concerns.

R. A. Runice, vice president for public relations said "any thorough analysis of salaries paid chief executives of large corporations will show these amounts are far from the high end of the scale."

His comment was based on a list of salaries of top officials of Northwestern Bell and other utilities in Iowa Monday by Maurice Van Nostrand, chairman of the Iowa Commerce Commission.

Van Nostrand listed the salary of T. S. Nurnberger, president of Northwestern Bell, as $108,125. Runice's salary was listed as $52,437 in 1971.

Salaries of Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha executives also were listed by Van Nostrand, including $152,320 listed for W. A. Strauss, president.

Howard M. Sorenson, information director for Northern, said his company had no comment on the matter.

Fremont Board Of Public Works Joins Battle Against Union Growth

Fremont (AP) — The Fremont Board of Public Works has joined in the opposition to a plan to extend Nebraska's limited union wage territory into Dodge County.

The proposal, said to be under consideration by the U.S. Labor Department's Construction Industry Stabilization Committee would extend the union wage area into the eastern third of Dodge County.

At present an area covering about 4½ counties in the Omaha area is union territory, where wages negotiated by unions become the prevailing wage on public construction projects.

Exon's Help Sought

Former State Sen. Lester H. Anderson of Lincoln and Mayor Leon F. Settles of North Bend, have sought Gov. J. James Exon's help in the matter.

Tuesday, George Svoboda of Fremont, attorney for the Board of Public Works made public a telegram he said he had sent Exon urging the governor to "wire the federal pay board that the Highway Department is opposed to the union inflation pact which is pending before the board.

"It doesn't take a study to see that doubling or tripling construction wage rates will shrink our road dollars outstate and Dodge County taxpayers want roads, not studies," Svoboda's telegram said, in reference to Exon's call for a study of the matter by State Engineer Thomas Doyle and Labor Commissioner Gerald Chizek.

"Also, they do not want to pay hourly rates like $7.78 and overtime $11.67 to build them," he said.

Highway Project

Svoboda also called attention to the Uehling-Oakland highway project, all but a half mile of which lies outside Dodge county, yet would come under the union wage area, if the proposal goes through.

"If this increase is granted it eventually will increase construction of the new secondary sewage treatment plant and new power plant $4 million and $20 million projects respectively," he said. "This will mean an increase in sewage and electrical rates to customers of the Fremont systems.

"We had better shut the barn door now on government inflated construction costs before it is too late. The economics of our towns and county is not that of Omaha and we should not be governed by Omaha's economic levels."

The man said he fell asleep and the woman, whom he knew only by her first name, had gone when he awoke.

His pants — minus a billfold containing $150 — were found in the hallway outside the hotel room, he said. He was introduced to the woman at a local tavern.

2-Year-Old Can-Do-Rilla Dies At Zoo

Omaha (AP) — A female gorilla nearly two years old died Tuesday of shigellosis, a bacterial intestinal infection, Dr. Lee Simmons, zoo director, said.

The young gorilla, recently named Can—Do—Rilla in a contest which drew thousands of entries, was sired by Casey, the male gorilla loaned to Omaha's Henry Doorly Zoo by the St. Paul, Minn., Zoo.

Dr. Simmons said the disease is infectious and usually transmitted among animals through excretions of infected animals. It can be indirectly spread by inanimate objects shared in common.

He said there are no other animals showing symptoms so far, but all other zoo animals and zoo employes will be tested for possible traces of the disease. He said it does not pose a health problem for zoo visitors.

Clayter Resigns Urban League

Omaha (UPI) — Jack V. Clayter announced his resignation Tuesday for "personal reasons" from his position as executive director of the Urban League of Nebraska.

Clayter, 38, has headed the organization since 1967.

He said he has not yet confirmed his new position but that he might take a job with the Urban League in St. Louis.

Job conflicts in his present post led to his resignation, he said.

Clayter, a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, native, was the first male Negro teacher at an Omaha high school when he came here in 1963.

UNO Master Plan Moving Forward 'Reasonably Well'

Omaha (UPI) — The University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) is moving forward "reasonably well" in carrying out a master plan announced a year ago, Dr. Rex Engebretson said Tuesday.

Engebretson, UNO director of campus planning and space utilization, noted about 13 acres for westward expansion and substantial progress on several major building projects have been made in partial implementation of the plan.

The $1 million Student Center addition has been occupied and construction has begun on Phase 1 of the $1.9 million Performing Arts Complex.

Two other major projects recommended by the master planners are under way — the $3.7 million general classroom-office building, and preliminary work on a new library.

The hope is, Engebretson said, that the university can receive bids for the classroom-office building this fall and that the structure can be occupied by 1975.

Clerk Reports Disbarment Of Dale T. Kirby

The clerk of the state Supreme Court, George Turner, reported Tuesday the disbarment of former Papillion attorney Dale T. Kirby.

Kirby is currently serving a one to two year State Prison sentence from a Sarpy County District Court embezzlement conviction handed down in 1970.

The judicial system had already initiated disbarment actions against the man via a judicial committee of inquiry.

But, before the committee could submit its recommendations to the high court for action, Kirby filed a voluntary action admitting his guilt and surrendering his license to practice law.

Kirby said he wished to "relieve the bar and my fellow lawyers from needless effort and procedure in striking my name from the legal rolls."

Omaha (UPI) — A 12-year-old Emerson boy died at a hospital here Monday of injuries suffered Sunday in a car-motorcycle accident on old U.S. 34 just east of Emerson.

Authorities said Larry Straight was a passenger on the motorcycle driven by his sister, Chris, 11, who was killed outright in the accident.

Officers said the motorcycle came up out of a ditch and collided with a car driven by Harlin Briggs, 29, of Red Oak, Iowa.

Councilman Is Fined $50 For Speeding

Omaha (AP) —Omaha City Councilman John Ritums was fined $50 by Traffic Court Judge D. B. Anderson on a April 10 speeding charge after conflicting testimony was presented in the case.

Patrolman Michael McGowan testified he drove an unmarked police cruiser up to 115 miles per hour chasing a car driven by Ritums and was not able to ticket the driver until he reached a parking garage.

Ritums said his car was not in very good shape at the time and he doubted if he would go 100 miles per hour, so he drove it to Iowa and had it tested.

He said he found that the car could not travel faster than 87 miles per hour. Ritums was found guilty of traveling 100 miles per hour in a 65 m.p.h. zone.

Proxmire, Ervin Planning Move To Halt SACB Funds

Washington (UPI) — Two unlikely allies Tuesday began a move in the Senate to kill the Communist-hunting Subversive Activities Control Board (SACB) by cutting off all its funds.

In letters urging the support of their colleagues, Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and William Proxmire, D-Wis., said they would attempt to eliminate the SACB's entire $450,000 appropriation when it comes up for a vote Thursday.

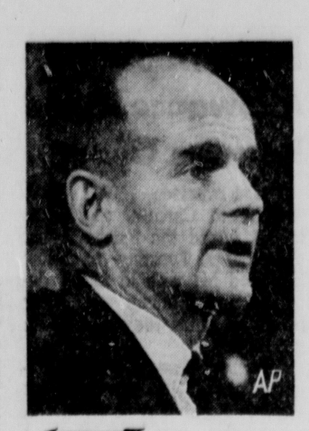
"We make a mockery of the appropriations process when we provide funds for an agency which has nothing to show for the expenditure of the public's monies," Ervin and Proxmire wrote. "It is high time we relegated the SACB to the history books where it belongs."

Proxmire, a leader of the Senate's liberal bloc, proposed an identical amendment when the agency's budget was considered last year but lost by six votes, 47 to 41.

Ervin, usually associated with conservative causes and acknowledged as the Senate's leading constitutional scholar, supported that move.

"Quite simply the continued existence of the SACB stands as an insult to the traditional freedoms of Americans," Ervin said in the advance text of a Senate speech he planned to deliver Wednesday.

The SACB was set up by law in 1950 to identify and list subversive organizations and individuals.



Sen. William Proxmire

Washington — Funding for 309 jobs for low-income residents of the First Congressional District were announced Tuesday in Washington by Representative Charles Thone.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC) will provide 268 summer jobs. Through the JOBS program, a joint effort of the National Alliance of Businessmen and the government, another 41 jobs will be made available.

NYC youngsters will generally work 26 hours per week for nine weeks at $1.60 an hour.

—Santee Sioux Tribe, Niobrara, 21 jobs, 09,070.

Additional NYC jobs in other communities are expected to be announced later, Thone said.

Under the JOBS program, Winnebago Cedar Buildings Inc. on the Winnebago Indian Reservation will be reimbursed $40,178 for providing a year's training for 26 tribe members.

The industry produces log cabins and erects them on sites for vacation homes, Thone said.

$900 Donated For Flood Victims

A total of $900 was contributed by Lincoln-Lancaster County residents Tuesday in support of the American Red Cross Fund Drive for the victims of the Rapid City, S.D., flood last weekend.

Harold Hill, Cornhusker Division Red Cross manager, also said the total state goal for Nebraska is $44,757. The Cornhusker Division share is set at $20,644, and the Omaha and Heartland Division goal is $24,113. No state figures are available on contributions.

Member stores of the Cornhusker Food Retailers Association will be collecting points for non-perishable food donations for the flood-stricken Rapid City area.

Food collected at the stores will be picked up and transported to South Dakota by the Salvation Army, according to Don Samuelson, executive director of the retailers group.

Capabilities Report Asked

In the wake of last weekend's killer flood in Rapid City, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf has requested a report from the Lancaster County Civil Defense Office on the status of Lincoln's civil defense capabilities if a similar storm occurs in the Capitol City.

Schwartzkopf said in a letter to Civil Defense director Jasper Skinner, "I realize that certain flood control measures have been made in recent years but would like to know your opinion and proposed program if a similar situation would happen here."

He added that he was particularly concerned from the civil defense standpoint of such a disaster as it would relate to Lincoln.

Hemingford Launches Drive To Raise Money

Hemingford (AP) —The community of Hemingford has launched a special drive to raise $10,000 to help the victims of the flood in South Dakota's Black Hills area.

Representatives of 12 churches and other organizations established a July 4 target date to raise the money.

Bruce Hagemeister is chairman of the steering committee. Other drive leaders include Gene Coplen, treasurer; Civil Defense Director Clyde Lawson; Chamber of Commerce and Lions representative Doug Shaver; Ministerial Association representative Rev. Howard Osborne and American Legion representatives Marvin Yardley and Arnold Kuhn.

$19,400 Raised By Red Cross

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas-Sarpy County Red Cross said Tuesday it has raised $19,400 to help flood victims in Rapid City, S.D.

This included $2,500 from Ak-Sar-Ben, which also donated $2,500 to a Salvation Army Fund, King Bogardus, Omaha division manager for the Omaha Red Cross reported.

Sidney Bank Held Up

Sidney (AP) — A suspect identified by Cheyenne County Sheriff Kermit Brumbaugh as Ronald Ray Henbrook, 23, of Hawarden, Iowa, was taken into custody four minutes after an armed man took $1,000 from the American National Bank in Sidney Tuesday.

Officials said the robber fled from the bank in a car bearing Iowa license plates.

The man had approached a teller's window and asked for $1,000 in $20 bills.

Police said Henbrook, who was arrested four miles west of here, offered no resistance. Police also said Henbrook had $1,000 and a gun at the time of the arrest.

Henbrook was held in the Cheyenne County jail.

The FBI, Sidney police, the sheriff's office and the State Patrol were investigating the robbery.

Henry Fonda Says He'd Leave If Nominated For Oscar Again

Omaha (AP) — Actor Henry Fonda said he would get out of the country again if he was nominated for a motion picture Academy Award.

He was nominated in 1940 for his portrayal of Tom Joad in the "The Grapes of Wrath" and left the country.

In an interview in Omaha in connection with a visit to his sister, Mrs. John Peacock, the 67-year-old native of Grand Island, called the Oscars great public relations for the industry.

But, he said the awards method doesn't make any sense . . . you can't vote one actor against another.

Fonda said he went on a cruise with director John Ford rather than attend the 1940 Oscar ceremonies when he was nominated.

He said he talked to his daughter, Jane, this year before she won an Oscar for her performance in "Klute." He said he asked her not to use the occasion to speak out on any of her well-publicized political causes.

Two Bellevue Youths Ordered To Boys School

Papillion (AP) — Two Bellevue youths have been ordered to the Boys Training School at Kearney by Sarpy County District Judge Victor Schmidt.

Officials said both were arrested in the drug sweep in eastern Sarpy County last month. Found to be delinquent following juvenile hearings were Phil Dean, 17, and Darrell Morrow, 16.

Young Dean was accused of the delivery of marijuana and young Morrow of the delivery of pills containing amphetamines. They were the third and fourth juveniles to be found delinquent since the drug sweep.

Two Persons In Kearney Want Teacher Fired

Kearney (UPI) — The Kearney Board of Education has been asked to consider dismissing a high school English teacher for having his students read the book "Summer of '42."

Complaining the book involves "sexual overtones," two persons appeared before the board asking for the dismissal of Richard Kuebler, sophomore English teacher at Kearney High.

However, the board decided to table the matter for further discussion.

Harold Rowe, Kearney school superintendent, said the board will discuss the matter with Kuebler prior to taking any action.

The Man Who Sold Newspapers

When Mark Twain was a young man, he was editor and publisher of a growing newspaper in a small Missouri town.

One day he received a letter from one of his subscribers. The subscriber said that he had found a spider in that morning's edition of his paper. He wanted to know if this was an omen of good luck, or of bad luck.

Mark Twain, a hustling space salesman as well as an editor, wrote to his customer:

"Dear Sir:

Finding the spider in your newspaper yesterday morning was neither good luck nor bad luck for you.

The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which of the town's merchants is not advertising. He will then go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Wild West Show Contract Near

By The Associated Press

State officials met Tuesday with Montie Montana Jr., the promoter who will again run the Wild West show in North Platte this summer, and both sides said they will sign a contract for the production later this week.

Tuesday's meeitng between Montana, State Economic Development Director Stan Matzke and officials of Matzke's department was called to permit Montana to outline his financial backing and plans for the new show.

The 1972 show will be known officially as the "Buffalo Bill Wild West Show and Congress of Rough Riders of the World," the title of the original Buffalo Bill show. Montana had been sued last year over the use of the name but an Arizona court ruled in his favor.

Money Trouble

Montana was the producer of the 1971 show in North Platte but it ran into financial difficulties after he took it on the road and closed in Los Angeles. Earlier this year, both Montana and the parent corporation declared bankruptcy in a Los Angeles court.

Matzke said he would agree to give Montana another chance if Montana could raise $50,000 for a new show.

Figures provided Matzke Tuesday show that Montana will have raised $40,000 by next weekend with the remainder expected to be in by the show's July 29 opening date.

The dates for the show at the state arena in North Platte are July 29 to Aug. 27, with shows nightly this year and a matinee show Sunday afternoon.

There were no Monday night productions last year.

With the arena seating 5,000 persons, Montana estimated the total potential attendance at approximately 150,000 persons.

At Least 50,000

He predicted attendance of at least 50,000 and said, "I would be very surprised if we have less than 40,000."

Even so, the show will be paid for, according to Montana's figures provided Matzke Tuesday.

The $50,000 Montana expects to raise by show time will cover the expenses for the show meaning "if not one ticket were sold, all production and promotion bills would be paid."

Should this summer produce a successful run, the 1973 show could be extended to eight weeks, Montana said.

The show won't be taken on the road again this summer but he suggested such a course of action in future years.

Foreign Inquiries

"We've heard from several foreign governments who have offered us a guarantee," he said.

The 1972 show will have many of the same performers as last year, Montana said. About 40 of the 60 to 70 persons in the show will be returnees. returnees.

TOURIST INFORMATION CENTER OPENS

Maureen Draver, left, and Sandi Belz hand out copies of the a new four-color tourist brochure at the grand opening Tuesday morning of the Tourist Information Center at the northeast corner of 9th and O. The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce said tourism is an "important part of instant industry" and said it hoped the center will be the start of Lincoln's share of this "important commerce."

Body Depletion Allowance Asked Because Of Age

San Francisco (UPI) — A 76-year-old Carmel, Calif., attorney asked the federal court of appeals Tuesday to allow him and his wife to claim depletion allowances on their bodies because they were both getting older.

Attorney Francis Heisler argued that if the court did not agree, it should convene a three-judge panel to declare unconstitutional such allowances for oil and mineral companies.

Curtis Backers Claim Chairmen In 93 Counties

Grand Island (AP) —A campaign leader for Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., reported Tuesday that each of Nebraska's 93 counties now has a "Citizens for Curtis" chairman, and further development of the 93 county organizations will follow.

"Never in my memory have we had such splendid cooperation in perfecting county organizations for the re-election of Senator Curtis," said Richard E. Spelts Jr. of Grand Island, state chairman of the Citizens for Curtis committee.

Curtis is opposed in his re-election bid by state Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, the Democratic nominee.

Spelts reported excellent results in recruiting county vice chairmen, generally women, and said 15 vice chairmen have been named to date. Additionally, 16 counties have perfected Curtis youth organizations and nine college campuses have been organized, he said.

Animal Scientists Will Participate In Meat Conclave

Ames, Iowa — Two University of Nebraska-Lincoln animal scientists will participate in the 25th annual reciprocal meal conference of the American Meat Science Association at Iowa State University at Ames, June 18-21.

Dr Roger Mandigo, associate professor of animal science and Dr. Charles Adams, professor of animal science, are members of the national organization's pork and educational advisory committees, respectively.

They will be among some 200 meat scientists from throughout the U.S. who will be discussing meat animal growth and development, meat additives and residues, processed meat, waste and environment control, and committee reports.

Dunlevey Names Cullen Assistant

Nebraska court administrator James E. Dunlevey announced Tuesday the appointment of Donald Cullen of Lincoln as his assistant.

Donald Cullen

Cullen, clerk of the Lincoln Municipal Court for the past five years, will assume his new duties July 1 at an annual salary of $15,000.

Dunlevey was recently hired by State Supreme Court Chief Justice Paul White as administrator, with the primary duty of implementing Nebraska's county court reform plan, enacted during this year's session of the Legislature.

"Mr. Cullen's background and experience should be very valuable in implementing the new county court system," Dunlevey said.

The administrator said Cullen's first duties would include the drafting of specifications for the tape recording equipment to be used in the new system.

Cullen, 30, is second vice president of the National Association for Court Administration, a member of the advisory committee to the National College of State Judiciary, and has been a speaker for the Ohio municipal court clerks annual conference.

City-County Study Funding To Be Urged

City and county officials will hold a special meeting Wednesday morning with representatives of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to urge federal funding of a city-county government study, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf announced Tuesday.

The Lincoln Foundation has agreed to pay for 35% of the study's cost, with the remaining share to be split by the city and county.

Mayor Schwartzkopf said although HUD officials have expressed interest in the proposed study, several questions remain.

Attending the session Wednesday will be representatives of the City Council, County Board, Lincoln Foundation, Civil Service Commission and Arthur D. Little, Inc., a professional planning firm.

Pair Sentenced For Rape Are Freed On Bond

State Penal Complex authorities said Tuesday that two Omaha Indian Tribe members, who were serving sentences for rape and kidnapping, were released from the prison under $2,500 bonds posted in U.S. District Court.

Authorities said Wayne Gohan and Dennis Tyndall were released at 1 p.m. from the penitentiary.

Federal District Judge Warren K. Urbom ordered their release under bond pending the outcome of the state's appeal of the pair's successful habeas corpus action to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis.

The case centers on the issue whether the state or federal court systems have jurisdiction over crimes committed on the Omaha Indian Reservation.

The Nebraska Supreme Court upheld their convictions, but later reduced their sentences to 35 years, but the federal courts have ruled the state retroceded jurisdiction over the Omaha reservation in Thurston County to the federal government.

Judge Urbom ruled last month the effective date of retrocession occurred before the state courts had passed final judgment on Tyndall and Gohan.

Their convictions stem from a 1969 kidnap-rape incident involving a coed.

Midwest Electric Loan Is OKd

Washington (UPI) — Approval of a $751,000 rural electrification loan to Midwest Electric Membership Corp., headquartered at Grant, was announced Tuesday by Rep. Dave Martin and Sen. Carl T. Curtis, both Republicans.

They said they were notified of the approval by the Department of Agriculture.

The department said the loan is to assist in financing 36 miles of distribution lines to serve 113 new customers, for installation of a new substation, and for various system improvements.

Midwest Electric serves five counties in southwest Nebraska, including Chase, Hayes, Keith, Lincoln and Perkins.

UNL Will Host Feed-Nutritionist Team From U.K.

An eight-man feed nutritionist team from the United Kingdom will be hosted by University of Nebraska-Lincoln animal science staff members Thursday as part of an 11-day tour arranged by the American Soybean Association in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service.

During their Nebraska stay, they will breakfast with NU Extension livestock specialist Dr. Paul Guyer and other NU staff members with whom they will later discuss beef and swine nutrition-ration computerization. Two beef feedlots in the Milford area will be toured during the afternoon.

Because of the likelihood of increased U. K. soybean importation, U.S. hosts planned a tour allowing team members to see 44% and 49% soybean meal used as a major source of dependable, high-quality protein for use in livestock and poultry rations.

The team will travel through Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Arkansas, and New York, visiting with research nutritionists at universities, experiment stations, and commercial research facilities.

Justice White Plans Hearing For Nominations

Paul White, chief justice of the Nebraska Supreme Court, announced Tuesday a hearing would be held in Omaha July 6 for nomination of candidates for a new seat on the Fourth District court bench.

The new seat was created via the passage this year of the redistricting plan for the State District Court System.

White said the hearing would be held on the third floor of the Douglas County Courthouse, beginning at 2 p.m. After the hearing, the Judicial Nominating Committee, which White chairs, will submit a list of candidates to the governor for an appointment decision.

James Hoffa Testifies On Prison Conditions

©The New York Times

Washington — James R. Hoffa was applauded Tuesday in the Senate Caucus Room as an expert witness on prison conditions and reform. This expertise was the result of a 58-month jail term whose origins could be traced to hearings conducted 15 years ago in that same lofty marble chamber.

The former president of the Teamsters Union described what life in prison was like for him and others — and it obviously was somewhat different for him than for the ordinary convict.

Hoffa sounded almost like a shop steward of the Federal Prison at Lewisburg, Pa., as he told the Senate Judicifary Subcommittee on National Penitentiaries, "I secured jobs, settled grievances, settled family differences, got lawyers" for the other inmates.

"Let somebody else live like a pig — not Hoffa," he said.

The hearing room was packed, and the audience burst into applause after Hoffa had finished his prepared remarks. They were gaveled into silence by the sub-committee chairman, Sen. Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D. The same room, with the tough, barrel-chested union leader on the same spot as a chief witness, was the scene of a Senate Committee's investigation into labor rackteeering in 1957. That investigation led to Hoffa's imprisonment 10 years later on jury tampering charges.

President Nixon commuted the 13-year-sentence, and Hoffa was released last Dec. 23.

Hoffa Tuesday urged 26 reforms in prison operation. Training inmates for available jobs upon their release was one of his key proposals.

"Many ex-convicts revert to a life of crime because they have not received job training that would assist them in obtaining employment in the outside world," he said.

"License plate and mop bucket manufacturing are two examples of prison vocations that bear little resemblance to potential jobs in private industry. Eighty-five per cent of the inmates in federal prisons lack any marketable skill when they leave prison," Hoffa continued.

"It is not for humanitarian reasons alone that we must reform the system," he said. "It is for our own safety. We have never faced up to the facts that most convicts will someday be released from the hellholes we call correctional institutions. They come out . . . more bitter, more disturbed, more antisocial, and more skilled in crime than when they went in."

HOFFA . . . applauded as expert witness.

Airline Join In Call For Hijacking End

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The world's airlines joined their pilots Tuesday in urging Security Council action against hijackers, asking the council to condemn and move to stop "armed aggression against civil aviation."

Secretary-General Knut Hammarskjold of the International Air Transport Association cabled the airlines' request from IATA headquarters in Geneva. The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations asked Thursday for "enforcement measures" against countries that give sanctuary to hijackers and saboteurs or fail to prosecute them.

Ola Forsberg, Finnish president of the pilots' association, said he would be in New York on Thursday to discuss the problem with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on Waldheim's return from Rabat, Morocco.

The pilots have threatened to stop all world air services for 24 hours next Monday if the United Nations does not take effective action.

New York City Police Issued Flat-Tipped Bullets

©The New York Times

New York — One-third of the city's policemen have been issued new, more efficient, flat-tipped bullets for their .38 caliber pistols, police officials reported Tuesday.

The officials said that tests conducted by the department had indicated that the flat-tipped projectiles would tend to ricochet less and penetrate less and would be more effective in anti-personnel use because, among other reasons, they would tend to punch into bone rather than to bounce off it.

What makes the new bullet different from the old one is the flat surface, about one-third of an inch across, at the tip of the lead slug, or projectile. The old design had a rounded nose. Both designs are for use in the department's .38 caliber service handguns.

The new design is known technically as the "semiwadcutter." A regular wadcutter bullet is completely flat across, and is so named because when it hits a target it punches out a round piece of paper that roughly resembles a shotgun wad.

Both types are distinct from the so-called "dum-dum" bullet or projectile which in its typical form has a hole drilled into the projectile to make it expand markedly when it hits.

The chief of the police departments firearms section, Lt. Francis J. McGee, said in an interview that the department had decided on the change, after two years of tests, because the semi-wadcutter design had three advantages:

—"It has a reduced ricochet potential," the lieutenant said, compared to the round-nose which "tends to glance off more easily. For police work in a crowded city like New York, he said, "you must be careful that the ricochet potential is at a minimum."

—"Its penetration tends to be less than the rounded projectile," which is an advantage, he said, because it made the projectile relatively less likely to pierce a wall, for instance, and harm innocent bystanders in an adjoining room. "You want the projectile to do its work and then stop," he observed.

—It tends to be more effective as an "antipersonnel" weapon than the round-nose because "it tends to make a clean, distinct wound channel, it doesn't get off its intended path as much as the other projectile; in the event that it tends to bite into the bone rather than glance off it."

Joseph Schroeder, the editor of Guns Illustrated, a nationally-distributed gun annual, endorsed the lieutenant's appraisal and said the semi-wadcutter was also convenient because it could be used both for regular duty and on a target range. Round-nose projectiles are considered less useful on a target range because they leave a less clearly defined mark when they hit the target.

Reached at his office in Northfield, Ill., Schroder said he knew of no other major police department in the country that currently uscd the semi-wadcutter.

Custer Man Is Shot

Custer, S.D. — A 26-year-old police officer was shot and killed while attempting to stop a burglary in the Gold Pan Saloon in Custer. Authorities said the victim . . . James Sawyer . . . was to have been married Wednesday. Authorities in Custer have declined to release specific details involving the incident.

Israel Claims Two MIGs Downed

Jerusalem — Israeli air force planes shot down two Egyptian MIG 21s Tuesday in a dogfight over international waters of the Mediterranean 25 miles north of the Israeli-occupied Sinai Peninsula, an Israeli military spokesman announced.

Two Egyptian pilots were sighted parachuting into the sea. All Israeli aircraft returned safely to base, the spokesman said.

In Cairo, Egypt declared that two Israeli Mirage fighter planes were shot down near Ras El Bar, a land spit some 30 miles northwest of Port Said, after 16 Israeli planes invaded Egyptian airspace and were intercepted by Egyptian planes.

Two Egyptian planes were reported hit in the encounter, which took place at 1:20 p.m. (GMT), the brief announcement by a military spokesman said. It said the Israeli planes fell into the sea.

The afternoon clash was the first air battle between Israel and Egypt since the American-initiated ceasefire came into effect 22 months ago. It was only the second serious infraction of nearly two years of truce.

Israeli accounts of the engagement were terse, but firm in denying an Egyptian announcement that two Israeli aircraft had also been lost.

According to the Israeli military spokesman, Israeli planes were flying a routine patrol mission over the Mediterranean north of the Sinai when they encountered Egyptian planes.

Military sources said the Egyptian aircraft — they would not specify how many — approached "in attack formation" in the Port Said sector. There was no comment here to the Egyptian charge that six Israeli aircraft had earlier penetrated Egyptian air space. The spokesman said only that an "air battle" took place.

Summer Program For Retarded Is Requested

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday heard a request from a parent group for an expansion of 1973 summer school offerings to provide a program for trainable mentally retarded youngsters.

Supt. John Prasch promised the parents he would submit a proposal to the board for consideration in budget discussions during the coming weeks, but he didn't commit the district to addition of the special education programs.

In other matters at a regular meeting, the school board accepted low bids totaling $925,000 for a major addition at Goodrich Junior High School and received copies of the final report of a year-long study of the district's elementary programs.

The request for summer school programs for trainable mentally retarded children was presented to the board by Chairman Nancy Grimstead of the General Arnold School parent advisory committee.

The children now receive regular school-year training in programs operated by Educational Service Unit 6.

"All recognized authorities recognize regimented scheduling of the mentally retarded as being necessary for continued growth," said Mrs. Grimstead in a prepared statement.

"Any teacher will tell you that after summer vacation it takes until Thanksgiving to get back what the children have lost.

She said more than half of the parents surveyed in a poll of those whose children now attend the program at General Arnold School in the school-year months have indicated they would pay tuition to send their children to a summer school.

Prasch said any summer program should be considered separate from the Service Unit's regular program, since the unit is "not all interested in a summer program."

He said questions related to transportation and state reimbursement should be faced in any consideration of the matter, but "this is something we should consider for next summer."

In personnel matters, the board authorized appointment of John Jensen, chairman of the education and psychology departments at Peru State College since 1967, as principal of General Arnold School for next year.

Emerson Replaced

Jensen, 45, will replace Delbert Emerson, who has been named principal of Kahoa, the district's newest elementary school.

Jensen has bachelors and masters degrees from the University of Northern Colorado and a doctorate from the University of Nebraska.

He has experience as a teacher and administrator in the Sidney school system and as a teacher in Springfield, Colo.

In building program matters, Prasch said the low bids totaling $925,687 for the addition at Goodrich were "appreciably below" architect's estimates.

Construction at the site is expected to begin this summer, and completion is scheduled for Aug. 1, 1973. The addition will double the capacity of the school.

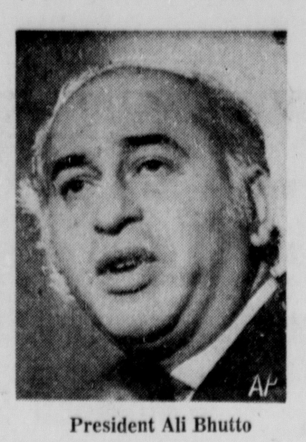
Sale Authorized

The board also authorized for sale four buildings used as annexes for Bethany School by declaring the buildings surplus property and okaying negotiations for sale.

The board's attorney also reported that a school board offer of $70,000 for 20 acres of land near 80th and Van Dorn had been accepted.

In other matters:

—Associate Supt. Ronald Brandt gave the board copies of the final Lincoln Elementary Assessment Project (LEAP) report, which summarizes results of a year-long study by teachers, administrators and others of the elementary program. Brandt said school district consultants and the council on instruction have given top priority to follow-up on the report's many recommendations.



President Ali Bhutto

Ali Bhutto Returns To Turmoil

Karacni, Pakistan (UPI) — Pakistan President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto made a 13-day journey to 14 African and Middle East countries to seek support for his country when he holds summit talks with Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on June 28.

But when he returned last Saturday he found Pakistan boiling with industrial unrest and deteriorating law and order — a situation that threatens his position at the New Delhi meeting.

To survive, observers agreed, Bhutto — who came to power because disgraced President Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan had nowhere else to turn for a strong leader after the Indo-Pakistan war — must show a firm grip in his own country before meeting Mrs. Gandhi. She recently consolidated her power through the democratic process that Pakistan has not had for about 20 years.

The Indo-Pakistan summit grew out of problems spawned by the 14-day war last December that saw the bloody birth of the Bangladesh Republic from what was formerly East Pakistan.

Days before Bhutto returned on June 10, Karachi itself was rocked by labor unrest. Five thousand workers at a mill protesting non-implementation of Bhutto's socialist program clashed with police. Mill officials said three persons were killed. Union leaders said 29 workers were killed and many more injured by police gunfire.

Five persons were reported killed. A religious party leader who managed to get into the colony said workers claimed eight or nine persons died.

Hinds Is Red Cross Chapter President

Robert S. Hinds
Elected Chairman

Robert S. Hinds, senior vice president and trust officer of the National Bank of Commerce, was elected chairman Tuesday of the Lancaster Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Other officers approved during the annual meeting of the chapter were Frank C. Sidles, Jerry Solomon, vice chairmen; Dale Young, treasurer, and Mrs. Blanchard Anderson, secretary.

Donald I. Parker, the outgoing chairman serving from 1969 to 1972, received the Red Cross Award for Meritorious Service.

In its annual report, the Lancaster County chapter listed the following accomplishments for the past year:

—The work of caseworkers in Service to Military Families reached 1,108 individuals and families, who received 2,223 services, ranging from simple information to intensive counseling and financial assistance. County residents sent 532 Christmas gift bags to Vietnam.

—More than 200 volunteers work in Disaster Services. Many were on the scene providing emergency shelter and food during the three blizzards of January-February, 1971. Several volunteers are now aiding victims of the flood at Rapid City, S.D.

—Instructors from 144 first aid classes issued 2,415 certificates in Lincoln. Daily classes have been conducted to train Lincoln business and industrial personnel for compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970. In 1971, 3,766 swimming certificates were issued in water safety classes.

—Last year 1,403 persons received instruction in practical health care classes, many being held for low-income groups. Volunteers also assisted school nurses.

—Red Cross Youth projects included the annual pop bottle drive to raise funds for underprivileged children, basic first aid classes, and a Bloodmobile visit which yielded 360 units of blood for the Lincoln Regional Center.

—"Friendly visitors," numbering 70, visited 98 elderly who were confined to their homes, while other services were provided persons in the Madonna, Tabitha and Homestead Nursing Homes. Other volunteers served at the Veterans Hospital, the Regional Center and St. Elizabeth Community Health Center. Five hundred volunteers were involved in sewing and knitting groups making non-issue items for the military and veterans hospitals.

—The Lincoln-Lancaster United Appeal made Lincoln a million-dollar city for the second year with total contributions of $1,139,208. The United Fund Rural Drive resulted in $3,126.

Judge OKs Settlement

Omaha (AP) — A $55 million settlement of a contract dispute between the Omaha Public Power District and the Peter Kiewit Sons Co. was formally approved Tuesday by District Court Judge Samuel Caniglia.

The judge had earlier indicated he would approve the settlement after attorneys for the power district, the construction company and Robert L. Andersen, an Elkhorn dairy owner, said differences had been resolved on how much the Kiewit company is to be paid for work at the Fort Calhoun nuclear plant.

Andersen, a candidate for the OPPD board, filed a lawsuit two years ago contesting the amount of money OPPD proposed paying the Kiewit company for work at Fort Calhoun.

Rural Development Bill OKd By House-Senate Committee

Washington (UPI) — A Senate-House conference committee agreed Tuesday on a compromise rural development bill designed to stem the rush of Americans into a few giant cities.

The bill was the most ambitious effort of its kind since the government began trying to deal with the population shift in the 1950s.

It included authorization for sweeping new programs of loans and up to $500 million a year to help attract job-creating industry to rural areas, and help rural residents with problems ranging from pollution control to fire-fighting.

The measure must go back to the House and Senate for final approval on the compromise, drafted by the committee from bills passed by the two houses.

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said the bill "is going to put rural people a lot nearer parity with city people in getting help from the government."

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, praised the conference agreement as the most significant rural development legislation since the Homestead Act of more than a century ago. But Talmadge, who saw some of the key features of the version he sponsosred dropped earlier on the Senate floor and the conference, said the new bill was "obviously just a beginning."

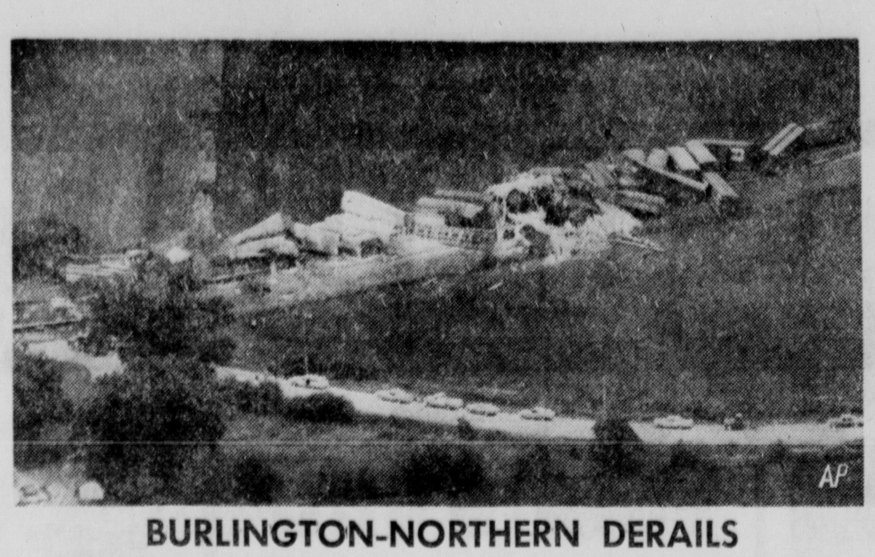
"It remains to be seen whether the bill will be properly funded or acted on by the Agriculture Department," Talmadge said. Poage said he would be pleased but surprised if the new loans reached the $1 billion a year level mentioned earlier by administration officials.

Most provisions of the bill would apply to open-country areas and towns of up to 10,000. Loans and grants for promoting industry would be available in towns up to 50,000.

Key features included:

—Authority for government-backed loans by the Agriculture Department's Farmers Home Administration (FHA) to help finance new business and industry and new or improved community facilities. No ceiling on the loan volume was set. The bill also authorized grants up to $50 million a year to help communities develop industrial parks and similar facilities.

—Authority for FHA-insured rural housing loans to borrowers of all income classes. Such loans are now limited to low-income rural residents.



BURLINGTON-NORTHERN DERAILS

Six motor units and the first 41 cars of a Burlington-Northern freight train derailed Tuesday one mile southwest of Russell, Iowa. The freight was east bound from Denver to Chicago.

Communications Satellite Shot Into Orbit

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — A new international communications satellite rocketed into orbit Tuesday en route to a stationary outpost high above the Indian Ocean to greatly increase space communications capacity among 17 nations.

Among its early assignments will be transmission of television pictures from the Olympic games in Munich, German, in August.

An Atlas-Centaur rocket soared away from Cape Kennedy at 4:53 p.m. CDT and 30 minutes later the space agency reported the booster had thrust the Intelsat 4 payload into a preliminary orbit extending from about 350 to 22,300 miles high.

"It was a picture book countdown and a picture book flight," an agency spokesman said.

After tracking the satellite for slightly more than a day, ground controllers Wednesday night are to ignite a spacecraft motor to arrest it in stationary orbit 22,300 miles above Indonesia at the Equator.

Small jets then will be used over a period of several days to guide the craft westward to its permanent parking position above the Indian Ocean.

Theives Lose Hair

Bastia, Corsica (AP) —Police pulled the hair of 360 persons boarding a boat at this Mediterranean island, and uncovered two robbery suspects wearing wigs. Two thieves had made their last strike at a beauty shop and authorities suspected they might try to escape in disguise.

China Assured Bombing Near Border Not Threat

©The New York Times

Washington — The United States assured the Chinese Tuesday that its bombing of North Vietnam close to their border was in no way intended to threaten their security.

The administration clearly sought to avoid damage to its delicate relationship with China as a result of the stepped-up air war over North Vietnam. Official spokesmen here repeatedly emphasized the use of sophisticated control devices to prevent accidental strikes on Chinese territory.

Commenting on Monday's statement by the Peking foreign ministry that the U.S. bombings were "grave provocations against the Chinese people," the State Department spokesman, Charles W. Bray III, said that "the actions we are taking against military targets in North Vietnam are taken with considerable care and precision, and are not in any way intended to threaten the security of China."

Bray again voiced the administration's confidence in the "effectiveness of some newer techniques involving, for example, laser beams and television control of the bombs" which are used in the air operations in the vicinity of China.

These devices, he said, "have made the air war more precise than in the past."

Bray declined to say whether the State Department felt that the Chinese government's statement was damaging to the improved relationship with China resulting from President Nixon's visit to Peking last February.

He also declined to discuss whether reassurances had been conveyed privately to the Chinese and whether the United States planned a formal reply to China's statement.

U.S. officials said that "for all practical purposes" Bray's comments Tuesday were chiefly addressed to Peking.

Secret contacts were set up between the United States and Chinese embassies in Paris when Nixon visited China. Officials said the meetings were continuing "as required," roughly at 10-day intervals.

Burundi To Get Along With Help Of Friends

Kampala, Uganda (UPI) — President Michel Micombero of Burundi said his country would get along on its own and with help from friendly nations if Belgium carried out its threat to cut off aid, according to a broadcast on Burundi's Voice of Revolution Radio.

Judge Rules Antitrust Case Terms Must Be Publicized Before Finality

©The New York Times

Washington — In the first such order ever issued, a federal judge is requiring the government to publicize widely the terms of settlement of an antitrust case before that settlement becomes final.

The case involves two trade groups accused of conspiring to block the sale of foreign-made steam boilers in the United States by denying the foreign products safety certifications that are required by law in many localities.

The idea behind the judge's order was that persons other than those directly involved in the case should have an opportunity to learn of the settlement and should have time to file a protest if they find the terms of the settlement inadequate.

The order was issued Monday by Daniel N. Edelstein, chief judge of the U.S. District Court for the southern district of New York. Details of the settlement and of the judge's unprececented requirement for publicizing it were made public Tuesday.

In issuing the order, which the parties in the case agreed to, Judge Edelstein called it "a historic first."

The order requires that an advertisement, detailing the terms of the proposed settlement, be published in seven consecutive issues of the New York Times, as a paper of general circulation, and of the New York Law Journal, as a paper that will be seen by lawyers.

The advertisement will specifically invite comments on the settlement from interested members of the public and tell them where they may obtain or inspect copies of the basic documents in the cae.

Anyone who wishes to comment on the settlement will have 60 days from Tuesday in which to do so.

Under ordinary procedures for settlement of antitrust cases, the settlements become final within 30 days after being filed with a court. Judge Edelstein proposed the extension of time.

The judge's action, which did not appear to imply that he saw anything wrong with the settlement of this specific case, followed mounting criticism of the procedures for settling antitrust cases from antitrust lawyers and from such organizations as Ralph Nader's antitrust study group.

The criticism intensified following the disclosures of the involvement of a White House staff member in the settlement, last year of cases against International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

Gov. Kneip Says Cloud Seedings Did Not Contribute To Disaster

Rapid City, S.D. (UPI) — Gov. Richard Kneip of South Dakota said Tuesday it was "ridiculous" to think that cloud seeding operations in the Black Hills area last Friday contributed to the flood disaster in Rapid City.

Kneip said he made the analyis after receiving a thorough report from Dr. R. A. Schluesener, the director of the Institute of Atmospheric Sciences at the School of Mines in Rapid City.

"It is ridiculous to think that a few hundred pounds of finely ground table salt dispersed from a single airplane could cause 12 inches of rain in a few hours," Kneip said in a statement. "I can assure you that the cloud seeding did not contribute to the disaster."

Kneip said both seeding operations conducted Friday by the Institute were east of the storm that developed over the Pactola Reservoir and in clouds physically separated from the Pactola storm.

"The storm in the vicinity of the Pactola Reservoir that caused the flood was recognized by meteorologists as danerous and was never seeded," Kneip said. "The storm that caused the flood was the result of an unusual combination of natural weather events."

He said "there is no evidence that the 1972 flood was other than a natural event."

The governor said the first seeding experiment Friday was carried out between 3 and 4 p.m. CDT near Piedmont, 15 miles northwest of Rapid City and 15 miles northeast of the Pactola Reservoir. The second seeding effort was carried out on the plains east of the Black Hills near Fairburn, which is 27 miles south of Rapid City.

"One of our goals in a relative arid area is to be able to add 2 inches of rainfall in an entire year," Kneip said. "We measured the rainfall from each of the experiments. Their amounts are well within the normal range of the rainfall amounts from other storms we have measured. They are minute in relation to the Pactola storm."

Six Men Indicted On White Slavery Charge

Tampa, Fla. (AP) — Six Arkansas men were indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday on charges of violating the U.S. Constitution's 13th Amendment — which prohibits slavery — in connection with the operation of a Central Florida migrant camp, the FBI said.

A special grand jury returned the indictment Tuesday and FBI agents arrested five of the men at the old Sun City School in Ruskin, FBI special agent J. F. Santoiana Jr. said. The sixth man, identified as Ernest Morgan, 23, is in a hospital in Brandenton and will be arrested upon his release, the agent said.

The men, all from Forest City, Ark., were identified as: Walter Taylor Jr., 31; his brother, A. J. Taylor, 26; Edward Earle Hinton, 26; David Rucker, 25, and Frank James, whose age was not available.

The six-count indictment "charged the group with conspiracy and involuntary servitude by preventing workers from leaving the employment and control of a migrant labor camp," Santoiana said. "Overt acts in the conspiracy included forcibly returning migrant workers to the camp, preventing and also beating several workers who attempted to leave the camp."

All but Morgan were taken to the Hillsborough County Jail here pending their appearance before a U.S. magistrate Wednesday.

FBI agents identified Walter Taylor Jr. as the labor camp's operator. The camp is used during the winter and spring growing and harvesting seasons and usually moves to Virginia and South Carolina during the summer and early fall for the peach and apple harvesting season.

All of the men indicted were living in the old school, agents said.

FBI agents were assisted by Hillsborough County sheriff's deputies in making the arrest, Santoiana said.

The penalty for conviction of involuntary servitude is a $5,000 fine or five years in jail or both. Conviction under the conspiracy statute carries a fine of $10,000 or five years in prison or both.

Horan, Parris Vie For Seat

Richmond, Va. (AP) — Robert F. Horan Jr., a Democrat, and Republican Stanford E. Parris won their parties nominations in the state's only Congressional primary Tuesday and will meet in November election for the 8th District seat.

Horan, 39, a Commonwealth attorney from Annandale, took an early lead over three opponents in the Democratic contest and held it.

With complete returns from 126 precincts, Horan had 7,554 votes to 5,268 for his nearest challenger, Herbert E. Harris II, 46, of Alexandria. The also-rans were James H. Burch, 29, of Springfield, with 4,126, and Alan S. Linden, 32, also of Alexandria, with 957.

In the two-way Republican duel, Parris, 42, had 7,051 votes with all precincts reporting, to 4,096 for James R. Tate, 28, of Fairfax, a former assistant U.S. attorney.

Horan and Parris, a member of the state house of delegates, will meet in November for the northern Virginia congressional seat being vacated by Rep. William L. Scott, R-Va.

Mayor Sam Is Bitten By Mayor Slim

Los Angeles (AP) — Mayor Sam Yorty was bitten Tuesday by a sea otter called "Mayor Slim Snorty" during the opening of a new park section at Busch Gardens.

The mayor's wounds were described as superifical, but he'll get a tetanus shot.

Yorty was bitten on the hand as he received the key to the gardens from the otter.

"Slim Snorty," also called "His Otter," acts in an animal show in the new five-acre section of the park.

In the act, the otter carries a suitcase pasted over with travel stickers to parody the travels of the Los Angeles mayor while a tape of Yorty's voice is played.

Yorty had indicated an interest in meeting "Snorty" after he opened the new $6-million facility with August A. Busch Jr.

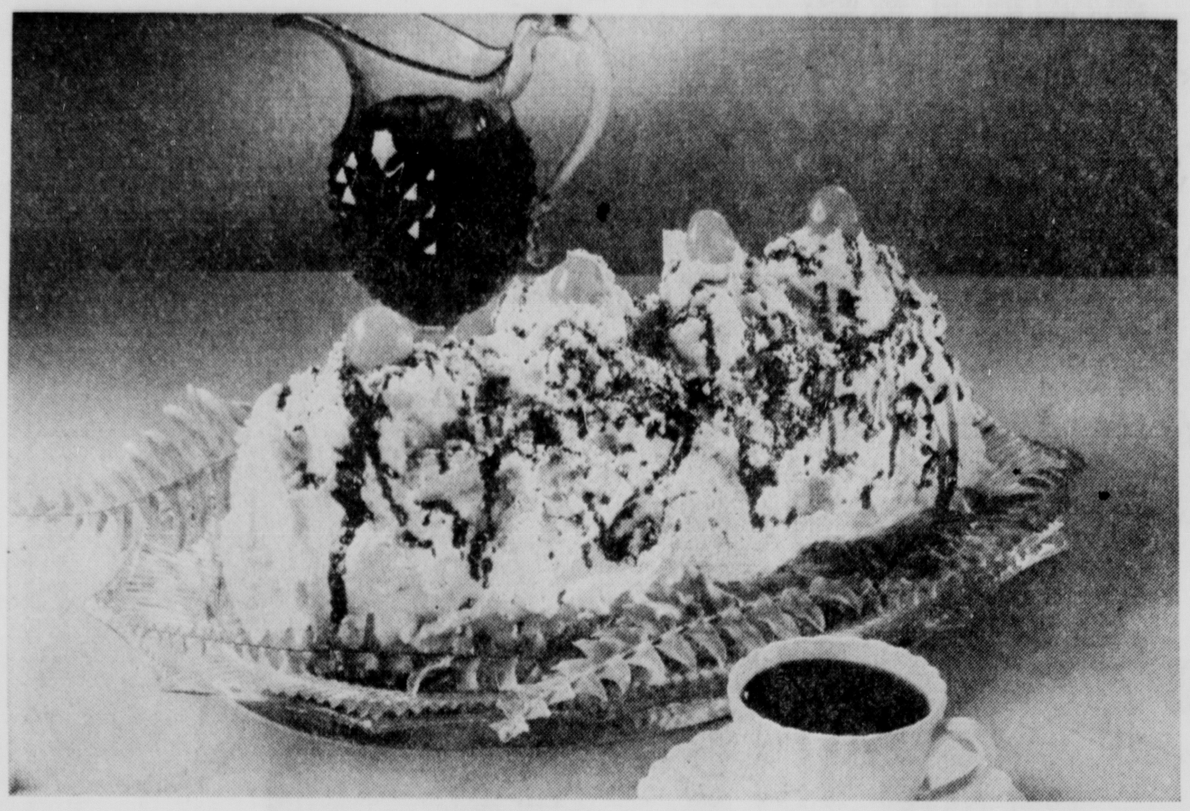
That Extar-Special Dessert



A man, woman or child who doesn't like dessert is hard to find. And who wants to find them when you are about to serve something new, something new and, we might say, rather spectacular. If your brunch — or late supper has been on the fairly simple side — or, if you are having a dessert luncheon, or entertaining your bridge club at a dessert supper — serve Banana Split Eclairs—

And here is what you do:

1 (1-quart) container Strawberry Ice Cream

2 cups finely chopped walnuts

½ cup (1 stick) butter OR Margarine

1 cup boiling water

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour

½ teaspoon salt

4 eggs

2 bananas, peeled and halved lengthwise

1 envelope unflavored gelatine

¼ cup cold water

2 cups (one 1-pint container) Heavy Cream

½ cup confectioners' sugar

Chocolate sauce

Maraschino cherries

Scoop ice cream into 8 balls. Roll ice cream balls in 1½ cups of the chopped walnuts to coat. Arrange ice cream ball in foil-lined jelly-roll pan (15x10x1-inch). Cover with foil or plastic wrap; place in freezer until needed. In large saucepan melt better or margarine in boiling water. Bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Add flour and salt ALL AT ONCE. Stir vigorously over low heat until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a stiff ball. Remove from heat. Add eggs, one at a time, beat well after each addition until mixture is smooth and glossy. To form 2 eclairs (9 x 3 inches); drop mixture by rounded tablespoons onto a greased cookie sheet. To keep rectangular shape: with a spatula smooth sides of eclairs by piling mixture on top. Bake in hot (400 degree F.) oven 55 to 60 minutes or until golden brown and firm. Cool on wire rack. Cut eclairs lengthwise in half. Line bottom half of each with 2 banana slices. Arrange 4 ice cream balls over bananas in each. Replace tops and return to the freezer. Soften gelatin in cold water; set over hot water and stir until dissolved; cool slightly. Beat heavy cream with confectioners' sugar until fairly stiff. Add cooled gelatine slowly, beat until stiff enough to hold peaks. Remove eclairs from freezer. Frost with whipped cream frosting. Sprinkle half the remaining walnuts over each; spoon chocolate sauce over all. Garnish with cherries. Return to freezer until serving time.

NOTE: If desired, eclairs can be made a day ahead, covered with foil or plastic wrap; placed in freezer until 15 minutes before serving

For Chocolate Lovers

For a moist, and fudgy chocolate bar with a rich coconut filling this is what you use—

4 squares (1 oz. each) unsweetened chocolate

1 cup butter or margarine

2 cups sugar

1 cup all purpose flour

¼ teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon vanilla

3 eggs

1 cup (6-oz. pkg.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces

½ cup chopped nuts, if desired

FILLING

2 to 3 cups flaked coconut

2-3 cup sweetened condensed milk

1 teaspoon vanilla

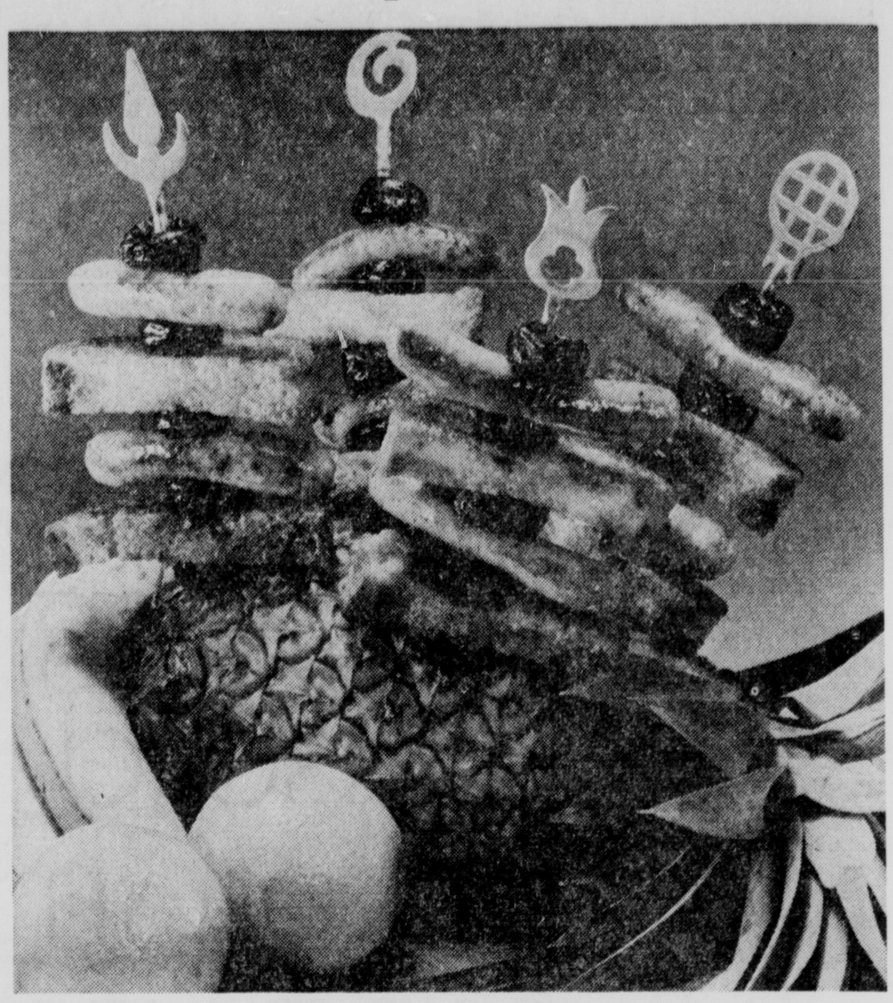
¾ teaspoon almond extract, if desired

Oven 350 degrees.

24 to 36 bars.

Grease 13x9-inch baking pan. (No need to sift flour; measure by lightly spooning into cup and leveling off.) In large saucepan over low heat, melt chocolate and butter; remove from heat. Add sugar, flour, salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla and eggs; mix well. Spread ½ chocolate batter in prepared pan. Prepare Filling; spoon evenly over chocolate batter. Spread remaining chocolate batter evenly over Filling. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes; immediately sprinkle with chocolate pieces. Let stand 1 minute; spread evenly over bars. Sprinkle with nut. Cool completely; cut into bars.

Having A Brunch? Try These Kabobs



Whether you spell it Kabob, Kebob or Cabob, if you're the average American, you'll pronounce this way of preparihg foods "fun".

Asia and the Near East are considered the source of the Kabob. The name covers any combination of cubed meat, poultry or seafood with fruits or vegetables arranged on skewers, marinated or basted with a sauce, and broiled.

For a swift brunch — or even a late evening supper — with lots of eye and taste appeal, serve kabobs of plump, pitted prunes, browned sausages and crispy cinnamon coated French bread. This is a fascinating combination with the fruit, bread and sausage all threaded together in a single serving package.

A syrup butter baste enhances both the chewy prunes and succulent sausages on these breakfast kabobs. To complete the menu, you might serve sliced bananas or oranges on the side and steaming cups of coffee.

PRUNE AND SAUSAGE KABOBS

1 pound pork link sausages (16 sausage links)

Water

4 slices French bread, cut ¾ inch think

¾ cup butter or margarine, melted

Cinnamon-sugar

40 pitted California prunes

¼ cup syrup

Place sausages in a large frying pan. Add ½-inch of water, cover pan, bring to boil, and simmer for 5 minutes. Drain off liquid and fry sausages until very lightly browned, shaking pan to turn them. Meanwhile cut French bread into ¾-inch wide strips, about 2-inches long. Dip each bread strip in melted butter just to coat and sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar. Alternate on each skewer a prune, sausage, prune, and cinnamon-coated bread strip; repeat and end with a prune. Continue threading skewers, making 8 kabobs in all. Arrange on a broiler pan. Add syrup to remaining melted butter (about ¼ cup) and heat to blend for a baste. Brush syrup baste over sausages and prunes. Broil, about 4-inches from heat, turning once, until bread strips are lightly browned and prunes puff up. Makes 8 servinngs.

CHIT CHAT with ROXI

Dear Roxi:

School has been out a total of 5 days and I am going crazy. I am bored stiff out of my mind. What can I do?

A. Get a job, work out in the yard, go swimming, write a letter, read a book, and last but not least do volunteer work. There is a song that goes people who need people are the luckiest people in the world. You, as well as everybody else in this world need your fellow human being and there are plenty of people that could use a friend, someone to talk to, someone to share life with. Although you may not realize it people who are in nursing homes are the ones who are really abused by this country. People act as if they are dirty or something and they're not. All they need is a little bit of love and friendship from one who cares about them. Go out and find someone, you'll never regret the smile that you brought to someone's face.

Dear Roxi:

My mother has been after me for the longest time to get me into the kitchen to cook. I hate to cook and don't want to learn. I am running out of excuses for not getting in the kitchen. What can I do?

A. I may be wrong, but one of the basic complaints of newly married husbands is their wives can't cook. I say get in that kitchen and learn how to cook. You can't hate something if you've never tried it. There is still truth in the saying a way to a man's heart is through his stomach. If you expect to get married and raise a family, you're going to need to know how to cook. So get in there and start cookin'.

Dear Roxi:

Now that school is out my parents are letting me date during the week, but they aren't changing the curfew hour and I still have to be in at midnight. What can I do?

A. Being able to date more often during the week, should make up for not changing your curfew. Sometimes we do not understand why our parents put their foot down at certain times. But they do, and disobeying them can only worsen matters. Talk to them and explain your position and feelings and maybe a compromise could be reached.

Dear Roxi:

I am so tired of hearing people say it must be rough to be so thin. Roxi, it is! I have for as long as I can remember been trying to gain weight. I eat and eat till I think I'll faint from exhaustion of eating constantly. What can I do?

A. I don't mean to be like everybody else, but, I still envy you. It has to be easier to gain than to lose. Maybe I think that way because I have always had to lose instead of gain. Likely one reason you aren't gaining is because you aren't eating the right kinds of food. See your doctor and I'm sure he could prescribe a kind of diet that would help you gain weight.

Dear Roxi:

I have got one heck of a problem. I have two friends who are at the present not getting along. They both want me to be on their side but, I like them equally well, and I don't feel either is completely right. What can I do?

A. Explain to both of them what you feel, that you don't want to lose either of their friendships and thus you felt it was better if your opinion was left out. If they're good friends they'll understand. It is sometimes better to say nothing, than to say something and regret it.

Dear Roxi:

I will be a senior this fall and I thought by now that I had outgrown crushes, but now I wonder. All of a sudden I like three guys all at once and I can't decide which I like better. Are these crushes or not?

A. Yes, likely. If you live to be a hundred you will never outgrow crushes. They are a part of life. One minute you may like someone and the next minute you can't stand them. That's where the difference between really liking someone for being himself, meaning twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, instead of just liking his looks or something he has done that you admire. Be patient, if they are crushes you will get over them.

Do you have a question or problem? If so write Chit Chat with Roxi in care of the Lincoln Star.

The bidding:

Opening lead—queen of clubs.

When there is is a sure way of making the contract, declarer should not adopt any other method of play that would jeopardize it. The principle is of course self-evident, but the fact is that players occasionally breach it without intending to do so.

Take this case where West led a club. Declarer won the queen with the king and tried a heart finesse, the jack losing to East's king. Back came a club, won by West with the ten, and another club lead forced out the ace.

Declarer led a heart to the queen and West showed out. Forced by the heart situation to turn his attention to diamonds, declarer led the queen from dummy and finessed, whereupon West took the king and cashed two clubs to put the contract down one.

South was undoubtedly unlucky, but, even so, the outcome was his own fault. He could have insured nine tricks at the start by attacking diamonds instead of hearts, and he should not have allowed himself to be sucked in by the attraction of dummy's hearts.

All he had to do was lead a spade to the ace at trick two and return the queen of diamonds, planning to finesse. Win or lose, he would make at least nine tricks against any distribution.

The early heart finesse opened the door to defeat—if by any chance East had the king and the suit was unfavorably divided—and hence should have been avoided.

In effect, South allowed himself to be diverted from his goal because he happened to be in his hand at trick one and found it more convenient to take a heart finesse than a diamond finesse. Had he considered the play more carefully, he would have appreciated the importance of establishing the diamonds first.

Abby: tell him it wasn't "J"

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband came home a little early and I didn't hear him. I was on the telephone talking to "B" at the time. ("B" is a guy I've had something going with for about a year. He's a friend of my husband's.)

My husband could tell I was talking to some guy because I hung up real fast when I saw him, so he asked me who my "boy friend" was. I lied and told him, it was "J" (another friend of his), but I told him that nothing ever happened between us. (It's true, nothing did.)

Since this incident, my husband has been very cool to "J." I feel just awful and want to clear "J's" name, but I'm afraid if I do my husband might suspect the right one. What should I do?

IN MESS IN K. C.

DEAR IN: Tell your husband that the guy on the phone wasn't "J." and if he guesses it was "B," you'd better run like "H."

DEAR ABBY: I have just had my 62d birthday, which makes me eligible for Social Security. My problem: For the last 32 years I have been living as a common law wife, but as far as I know, none of my friends are aware of it. Common law marriages are legal in this state, but I have heard that in order to prove my marriage when I apply for Social Security, I must have affidavits stating that my husband and I have been living together as man and wife. I couldn't possibly ask any of my friends to sign for me, Abby. I couldn't bear the gossip.

My husband is 74, and we could use the extra money. Is there any other way to solve my problem?

NAMELESS IN IDAHO

DEAR NAMELESS: Either inquire at your local Social Security office, or ask a lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a saint with a triple halo. He not only forgave me, but at a great financial sacrifice he secured psychological counseling for me. Even as I write this I am struggling to keep from making a phone call to let "the other man" know that my husband will be out of town and I'll be available.

Counseling is expensive, but when I look at my beautiful family I realize it's worth holding my marriage together for. Besides, believe it or not, no woman ever had a better husband.

STILL FIGHTING IN SEATTLE

DEAR ABBY: The saint you are searching for is living in Houston. I was the unfaithful wife. He caught me with his best friend but he didn't get mad and try to kill anybody. He calmly walked away and came back the next day to talk things over. This wonderful man was big enough to say, "Maybe it's partly my fault. If I had paid you more attention you wouldn't need anybody else."

We both decided that we'd try to make a go of our mariage. This happened 31 years ago, and God willing, we will celebrate our 50th this June.

FASHIONS

By BERNADINE MORRIS
(c) New York Times Service

New York (undated) — The prevailing look on seventh avenue is casual, sensible, safe, but that hasn't hampered designers. The existence of an accepted framework of fashion for fall has inspired some of the most pleasing clothes in years.

Some designers are content to work within the framework, confining their inventiveness to choice of fabrics or colors. Some are straining against the restrictions, pushing the boundaries out. The result is considerable variety in the clothes available without too much attention to the frankly odd or kooky.

Kimberly has represented some sort of fahion insurance for a host of women for years. When the women don't know exactly what to wear, they just reach in the closet and pull out the Kimberly.

Chances are, it doesn't let them down. A decade ago, the Kimberly was vaguely Norell-ish. Then came the Courreges period. And just four years ago there was the tumultuous time when Kimberly introduced pants.

Today, pants are a significant part of its business, knitted like the dresses that are the company's mainstay. Some of its best-looking styles for next fall involve pants. Not pants alone, but pants with sweaters — and jackets. Dresses also are worn with sweaters, either over or under them. The news of the season is fashion in parts, and Kimberly always manages to be in the mainstream.

The sleeves are gathered into the shoulders. Then they billow out poetically to be gathered once again into the wrists. It's not at all improbable that Issey Miyake, who is one of the folk who brought you the kimono, should focus on sleeves.

Nor is it unlikely that he should create a new shape for them. As the Japanese change from traditional to western dress, their designers are bringing an original flair to the clothes they make.

In Paris, Kenzo of J.A.P. is one of the most copied designers.

It was indeed inevitable. With all the talk about classics, someone was bound to bring back the mannish tailored suit. Fortunately, it was Ralph Lauren, who knows something about tailored. Mannish too, for that matter.

And now he has introduced his first woman's collection. He calls it sophisticated sportswear, but tailored suits would be more apt. They're in gray flannel, herringbone tweeds, classic checks. Some are worn with button-down shirts or vests.

They sell for $200 to $250 and for the woman who realizes mannish tailoring can make her look more feminine, they're a neat idea. As for the tuxedos for women, they're a mistake.

Parties In Lincoln, Omaha

This is the day we plan to catch up on all of those prenuptial courtesies for Miss Cathie Chesen whose marriage to Allen Morris of Omaha, will be solemnized next Sunday.

The courtesies for the popular bride-elect began almost the moment her engagement to Mr. Morris was announced, and among the early date hostesses were Mrs. Jerry Solomon and Mrs. William Seiboldt who entertained at luncheon and a kitchen shower at the Lincoln Counary Club — And we mentioned quite some time ago the party for which Mr. and Mrs. James Swanson and Mr. and Mrs. Druliner were hosts and hostesses—

Then—to Omaha and a dinner for which Miss Chesen's brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Magid were host and hostess at 'Mr. Kellys. The evening was completed with a vice shower.

Also in Omaha was the linen shower for which Mrs. Ernest Hochester was hostess at the Hilton Hotel—

And now back to Lincoln, and the cocktail and hors d'oeuvres party, and a pottery shower early in May. Mrs. Virgil Parker and Miss Vicki Douglas were the hostesses when they entertained at the home of Miss Douglas.

Two days later Miss Chesen was again an honoree at a dinner and an around-the-clock shower when Mrs. Harry Simon and Mrs. Robert Simon entertained.

* * *

Back to Omaha once more for a brunch. There were three hostesses — Miss Leah Siegel, Miss Belle Siegel and Mrs. J. Stohr.

Also in Omaha was the luncheon for which Mrs. Frances Ferer and Mrs. Sally Appel were hostesses at the Highland Country Club.

Mr. Morris has had some fun along the way, too. On May 25 he shared honors with the bride-elect's father, Irwin Chesen, at the stag party for which Norbert Tiemann was host at his home.

* * *

And then back to Omaha for the bride-elect — who was the honoree at more luncheons and more dinners — We might add that for those dinners on the prenuptial courtesy calendar Mr. Morris shared honors with his fiancee.

This evening, for instance, Miss Chesen and Mr. Morris will be in the courtesy spotlight when Mr. and Mrs. Louis Somberg, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Somberg and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Somberg are dinner hosts and hostesses at the Highland Country Club in Omaha.

THEIR TIME, EFFORTS HAVE GREAT RESULTS

Right at the moment Tuesday, Sept. 26, seems a long way off. The Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary —at least those Auxiliary members who are serving on the Fashion Show committee, know that Sept. 26 actually is just around the corner.

The committee members for the 1972 fashion show which, by the way has the fascinating theme of "Especially For You," met Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Grant Reed to discuss more plans and more details of the September show.

This year the fashion show will have special significance for the Auxiliary members — It is the 10th anniversary.

The presentation of "Especially for You" will be at the Pershing Auditorium.

The Sunken Gardens long has been one of Lincoln's most popular and beautiful spots. With its multi-colored flora, waterfall, and other adornments serving as a backdrop, the city landmark has been selected as the site for several of the more contemporary wedding ceremonies — and visitors to our town are fascinated with the breathtaking beauty of the area.

One of the most perplexing facts concerning the Sunken Gardens, however, has been the continual absence of means by which the frequent visitors may identify the varieties of flowers found there.

Well, the members of Xi Kappa Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, decided to take matters into their own hands — and, with the cooperation of the Lincoln Parks Department, the members constructed laminated name tags which were placed on iron rods beside each plant.

The plants and flowers officially rceived their name tags on Tuesday afternoon, June 13, when the Sorority members gathered at the Sunken Gardens to complete their service project.

Mrs. Dorothy Bitler, chapter service chairman, was in charge of organizing the project.

Dining with Wine

A common suggestion made by wine clerks that wine should be served at a dinner is often answered by: "but I don't like wine". When pressed for a reason for this expressed dislike the prospective buyer shrugs his shoulders and he again offers, rather weakly; "I just don't like wine". When questioned further he is at a loss to offer any cogent reason for his particular dislike of wine. He knows that many of his friends, in ever increasing numbers, are enjoying wine and he would like to add this pleasure to his way of life. But somewhere along the line was served a wine which apparently did not provide him with the reaction that would send him into ecstacy; or he was served with a wine which was incompatible with the food he was enjoying and they — he and the wine — didn't hit it off too well. Consequently, he assumed that all wines are the same and he would have no more of it. This is a very common occurrence and many people react in the same manner.

It is well to remember that one does not enjoy wine instinctively as he enjoys food Rather, the taste for wine is something that each individual develops by himself as he samples the many wines being offered. It is only by trying a great number of wines that one is able to determine which wines are "right" for him and invariably the wine drinker will settle on a few wines which will form the basis for his wine "repertoire". He will continue to try many others but every wine lover will have "favorite" wines.

Trying the wrong wine can be very discouraging to the beginner. Often times these beginners will start by drinking a Burgundy or red Bordeaux — and these wines may make one "wine shy". Since these wines are very heavy in tannin — some people identify the fragrance and aroma with medicine and often complain that the wine tasted "mediciny". Tannin is a most essential preservative derived from the skins, stems and pips of the grape during fermentation and later from the casks in which the wine matures. Without this vital element the wine would have very little character and even a shorter life. The beginner should not attempt to develop his wine progression by tackling a big wine like a Burgundy or a red Bordeaux. These wines are too robust and powerful for the beginner. A much better choice would be a white wine; much more delicate and not so heady.

Perhaps the best wines for the tyro are the German wines. These wines are not exactly dinner wines and are usually enjoyed for the sheer pleasure of wine drinking after meals or for just sitting and sipping. Women especially, have enjoyed "Rhine wein mit Seltzer" for years—it is unmatched as an aid to weight reduction. German wines range in dryness from the delicate Moselles to the rich, luscious Trockenbeerenauslese—they are unmatched by the wines of any other country. In all there are about 15 degrees of sweetness to be found in German wines—actually a wine for every purpose.

One could start with an Ondine Piesporter Reisling and a loaf of sour dough bread or pumpernickle—an excellent combination. Then try a slightly sweeter wine such as a Tacitus Liebfraumilch Spatlese Naturein, a full-bodied and rich Rhine wine. This wine goes great with mild cheese such as Cammenbert, Brie or Bel Paese. You may then go to a Bernkastler Schwanen Auslese by R. Bernard-Graach—this time with fresh fruit such as apples or peaches. As you go from the drier to the sweeter wines you will find it rather easy to distinguish between these wines—you are going up the scale which is the proper manner in which to sample wines. Chilling these wines in the refrigerator for several hours will bring them to the proper temperature. All you will get from this experiment will be pleasure you never enjoyed and a good start to being a wine expert at your own table—where it counts most. Everyone can do it—it is easy and much fun; and very healthy.

U.S. Is Closing Out Psychological Warfare Efforts In Vietnam

©The New York Times

Saigon, South Vietnam — American psychological-warfare efforts in Vietnam, centralized for the last seven years in a single large agency here, are being rapidly closed out or dispersed, mainly to reduce public reminders of the U.S. role in the war.

The Joint United States Public Affairs Office (JUSPAO) has vacated the large building near Saigon's city hall that has been a downtown symbol of the American presence since the mid-1950's.

The agency itself will cease to exist when the fiscal year ends in June.

The part of its functions that had to do with informing Vietnam about American policies and culture has reverted to a new United States Information Service center in another part of town, comparable to those maintained in all other countries with which the United States has diplomatic relations.

The conventional activities of a USIS office only represented a small part of the work performed by some 700 staff members and employes at the agency during its peak year, 1969.

With an annual budget at that time of more than $16 million divided between the United States Information Agency, the Defense Department, the Agency for International Development and other American agencies, the Joint United States Public Affairs Office had a mandate to operate in almost every aspect of the war.

In general its mission was to help "win the hearts and minds of the Vietnamese people," to sustain American support for the war by favorably influencing newsmen, to gather intelligence about enemy psychological warfare tactics and to undermine enemy morale.

The idea was to avoid the wasteful overlap that had resulted for years from disputes and lack of coordination not only between the Americans and Vietnamese but between American military and civilian agencies.

The creation of the agency also implied the recognition that the psychological and political aspects of the war in Vietnam were nearly as important as the battles themselves.

Reflecting the basically military character of the organization, there were more American military men than American civilians working for it, although it was always directed by a civilian from the United States Information Agency.

Many of the key American tactics used in the war, including pacification, were developed in the organization.

Attempts were made with varying success to develop counterparts of the Vietcong's agitation and propaganda teams, which had been spectacularly successful in the early war years in mobilizing communities to resist Saigon's control.

It was felt that propaganda in Vietnam would have to go far beyond the conventional loudspeakers, leaflets and other devices used in past wars and that agents would have to live and work among the people they were seeking to influence.

At one point Americans were even organizing a campaign of selective terrorism directed at known Vietcong agents, seeking to kill them in ambushes, or in their beds, and making sure the lessons were not lost on local residents.

But over the years senior American officials here felt increasingly uneasy that the agency had become "a surrogate Vietnamese ministry of information."

It was argued that too much American assistance discouraged the normal development of Vietnamese propaganda, that Vietnamese pamphlets and posters prepared and printed by Americans were too slick and professional and that everything had an unpalatable American flavor.

The turning point came, the American officials say, during the election campaign last year in which President Nguyen Van Thieu was reelected unopposed to the presidency.

Americans say they wanted not only to avoid the impression that they were influencing that election in any way but also to avoid the pitfalls of having become linked inextricably with the Thieu government. When Thieu's two opponents declared that the election was rigged and withdrew from the contest, Washington particularly sought to escape the ensuing charges that a dictator was being kept in office with American help.

At least one senior American psychological-warfare expert believes that the organization succeeded in its basic mission — "winning hearts and minds."

Pepsi Cola, Merrill Lynch Head List Of Donors For Nixon Campaign

Washington (AP) — The president of Pepsi Cola and the political committee of the nation's largest stock brokerage firm lead the list of publicly reported contributors to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

But the names of hundreds of other wealthy backers who may have kicked in far more remain buried from public view in the files of the Washington-based Finance Committee to Re-elect the President.

Committee officials have said they never will be released.

Contributions of $15,000 apiece from Pepsi President Donald M. Kendall and the Effective Government Association of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith were the largest Nixon donations listed in reports to the General Accounting Office.

The reports were the first quarterly accounting of contributions and spending required under a new federal elections law that went into effect April 7.

Required

They cover the period from April 7 through May 31 and were required of all political committees expecting to spend or actually spending more than $1,000 in behalf of a candidate for federal office.

The reports, filed Saturday but not available for inspection until Monday, confirmed what almost everybody expected — that the Republicans are heading into the fall campaign with coffers bulging while the Democrats have been staggered by primary spending.

The Finance Committee to Re-elect the President and three satellite committees operating under the chairmanship of former Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans have collected some $10 million, about a third of what Nixon expects to raise and spend.

Kendall and Merrill Lynch were among 51 donors who gave a total of $409,405 in gifts of $2,500 or more to various Nixon committees.

The balance of $1.22 million collected since April 7 and listed by the four committees was donated by several thousand contributors in individual amounts of less than $2,500.

Won't Release

Former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, chief of the Nixon re-election effort, said over the weekend that the names of those who contributed some $9 million before the new law went into effect will not be released

Most of the leading Democratic hopefuls, with the exception of Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, and Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, disclosed major campaign contributors early in the primaries.

But Mitchell told television interviewers Sunday he thinks big GOP donors have a right to privacy and that Nixon committees will adhere to the letter of the law.

Although some may be waiting until later in the campaign, virtually all the big Nixon contributors from 1968 were missing from reports to the GAO, indicating some probably gave before April 7.

Stans has said he didn't encourage contributors to slip in under the deadline when he traveled about the country earlier this year to raise funds. But he has acknowledged pointing out the loophole in the new law to potential donors.

Merrill Lynch was the largest single contributor listed for the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President. Kendall and several other large donors split up their contributions to that committee and its satellites.

$3,000 Each

Kendall gave $3,000 each to the Finance Committee and to the Radio, Television and Media Committees to Re-elect the President. He also gave $3,000 to the California Committee to Re-elect the President.

J. S. Schweppe, a Chicago physician, gave $10,000 to the four committees. The only other $10,000 donor was Asa V. Call, honorary chairman of Pacific Mutual Life, who contributed with his wife directly to the Finance Committee.

Large contributions also were reported for several administration officials.

Henry Loomis, deputy director of the U.S. Information Agency, and members of his family contributed $15,000 to the Republican National Associates which is expected to spread its money around to various Republicans as well as Nixon.

Secretary of Interior Rogers C. B. Morton and his wife contributed $5,000 to Nixon.

Christian A. Herter Jr., son of the former secretary of state and currently a special assistant to Secretary of State William Rogers, gave $2,500 to Nixon and another $2,500 to RN Associates.

Pair Of Musk Oxen Won't Win Beauty Prizes

©The New York Times

Peking — Well, let's face it — the musk oxen are never going to win any beauty prizes from the giant pandas, but at least they are well enough now to face the crowds at the Peking Zoo.

The musk ox pair are being viewed by a constantly changing crowd of curious visitors to the zoo, and while they still look rather seedy it is apparent that their skin ailment is improving under the care of the Peking curators.

The two beasts, a rather undersized male and a quite thin female, have been placed in one of the central areas of the big Peking Zoo about five minutes walk from the entrance. The male and female have separate pens and the other day both were up against the wire fence apparently trying to nuzzle each other. They have outdoor shelters to shade them from the blazing sun which can run the temperature up to over 90 degrees. From now until the later part of August the musk oxen will be subjected to temperatures far higher than any they are accustomed to in their native Alaskan tundra.

There were 30 or 40 people pressed up along the fence recently, to see the musk oxen, and while the crowd was constantly changing it never seemed to drop below that number. As might be expected, it was the biggest crowd before any of the cages at the zoo, including the eternally popular giant pandas.

The musk oxen came down with a skin ailment shortly after their arrival in Peking as President Nixon's gift to China, and were kept in seclusion while under treatment. A couple of weeks ago the animals were judged well enough to be viewed by the public.

Each animal has two water tanks and two shade platforms, one located under a Locust Tree, to help survive Peking's fierce summer heat. Recently, the male musk ox wandered about in fairly lively fashion, but never came very close to spectators, preferring to perambulate from one water tank to another.

Judge Rules Parental Law Too Vague

Lapeer, Mich. (UPI) —A judge Tuesday ruled the city's parental responsibility law too vague to uphold the conviction of a father on charges he failed to exercise proper control over his 11-year-old son.

It was believed the first time any Michigan parental responsibility law has been tested in an appeals court.

Circuit Court Judge Norman Baguely overturned the conviction of William Edgerton, who had been found guilty last November in district court. The court said he was criminally liable for vandalism committed by his son, William Jr., who with another boy shot out $1,200 worth of windows.

Baguely said the wording of the ordinance, similar to laws in other cities, was so vague that a parent might be required "to be with the child at all times.

Popular Santa Claus To Ill For Chimneys

Detroit (UPI) — Santa Claus may not be coming to town this Christmas. At least he may be too ill to climb down any chimneys.

Perhaps this is not the time of year to talk about Santa and his personal problems. It's still June — not the usual time to write about Eugene Gribble, the man thouands know as Santa Claus.

But Gribble, a 53-year-old truck driver, is a man running out of time. He has cancer and may not be able to share Christmas with others this year.

To many Detroit-area children, Gribble is the Santa Claus who holds court in his Christmas fantasyland trailer, originally in suburban Romulus and more recently in Belleville. His elaborate display is reportedly the largest owned by a private individual and in the last 13 years more than 200,000 children have trooped through it to sit on his knee.

The once-dynamic Gribble now stumbles around his home in Romulus like a lost soul. He can't read the sign in the trailer, and he can't see the children who visit him. His white beard has begun to fall out.

Despite the removal of eight tumors in the last three years, he still hopes to land by helicopter and proudly lead a Belleville parade featuring his eight life-sized reindeer in December.

His wife, Lynne, currently helps him financially by driving a school bus. That job will end soon, and then the couple will be dependent on $50 weekly from the Teamsters Union health and welfare fund.

Warning Leads To Daily News Pickets' Removal

New York (UPI) — Picket lines were withdrawn from the Daily News building by striking building guards Tuesday, following a warning by News President W. H. James that he would close the paper down on Thursday if the strike continued.

Teamster Union officials agreed to withdraw the pickets — and allow delivery of newsprint — after conferring with State Mediation Board Chairman Vincent McDonnell. Bothsides, McDonnell said, agreed to resume negotiations on Wednesday.

Pickets supporting the striking building guards at the News delayed distribution of Tuesday's first edition, distributed Monday night, for nearly an hour. The delay came on the fifth day of a strike for higher wages by the guards, who were members of Teamster local 820.

Truck drivers delivering newsprint honored the guards' picket lines, reuulting in a shortage of newsprint to the 2-million circulation morning tabloid. James had said the newspaper would have to shut down on Thursday unless additional supplies of newsprint were delivered.

Court Says Nude Sunbathing OK If Beach Isolated

San Francisco (AP) — The state Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that a person may sunbathe nude on an isolated beach without being guilty of criminal indecent exposure.

Such a secluded unveiling does not violate Section 314 of the State Penal code which prohibits indecent exposure if "willfully and lewdly" committed for the purpose of sexual arousal, the court said in a unanimous decision.

The ruling struck down the 1970 conviction of Chad Merrill Smith who was arrested after he went sunbathing on an isolated San Diego County beach.

Growing Ratio Of Doctors Stressed By NMA Head

Dramatic progress has been made in the United States in the past 11 years in training new physicians in greater number to meet the health care needs of the American people, the president of the Nebraska Medical Association said Tuesday.

Dr. Frank Stone, Lincoln, said the number of physicians is growing at a ratio faster than the population of the United States. In 1971 there was one physician for every 612 people in the country. This compares with one physician for every 712 people in the country in 1960.

"The ratio of physicians to people has increased to the point where in 1971 there were 163 physicians for every 100,000 people, compared with 141 for every 100,000 people in 1960."

Positive Side

Dr. Stone said he wanted to "tell the positive side of the physician supply story. With health care being the political issue that it is, few people have been objective enough to admit that we have made great strides under our system. But the fact is that 11,000 new physicians were added last year, 9,000 the year before, and we are making great strides in this country."

The Lincoln physician who heads up the 1,400 member NMA said he believes that the most pressing problem with physician supply is a lack of proper distribution of physicians, not a lack of physicians.

"Our association has had several committees working diligently on this problem for years," Dr. Stone said. "We know for certain that the urgent problem is one of distribution. Doctors have the same inclinations as other citizens. They tend to want to locate in population centers nearer to the better facilities.

Flow Into Cities

"This has resulted in a flow of physicians into urban areas, and away from the smaller communities and rural areas.

"This association is going to continue to work hard for programs that will help supply physician services to these rural areas and smaller communities. However, we recognize that these areas themselves must take steps to help answer the problem.

"First of all, they should see the benefits to be gained for their community through regional health centers. And they should participate in community health care planning. Secondly, they should tackle the total job of attracting people to rural areas. These two methods would result in real and not synthetic solutions to the physician distribution problem.

Sofa Style Hints

New York (UPI) — Many factors influence the style of sofa a consumer selects. These include the ages of children, whether snacks will be eaten on it and if the sofa will be used for naps, to name only a few.

Take along a floor plan of the room to help the salesman get some idea of the wall or area where sofa will be used.

Postponement Sought

New York — An attempt to postpone the inevitable for another four years began at the Air Force Academy in Colorado.

Henry Iba, the coaching magician from Oklahoma State, assembled there some three-score candidates for the basketball squad that will represent the United States in the Olympic games at Munich in the late summer.

It is an assignment that keeps building up, much like an unattended pressure cooker. Eventually, the lid will have to blow off. But when?

That's what provides an extra suspense factor for each set of Olympics.

Not only has the United States won every Olympic basketball tournament but it also has won every game in every tournament. Hence the record in this greatest of international showcases represents a total embarrassment of riches, 55 victories and no defeats.

"In our egotism," said Iba in a recent conversation, "We think we're always going to win. But the day has to come when we'll face more than we can handle.

"Every year those foreign teams keep getting better and better. Every year they come closer to bridging the gap."

"Americans have the feel of a basketball from infancy Lew Alcindor and others of the best known collegians left the United States in a shaky position that imperiled American preeminence. Iba did the finest coaching job of his career at Mexico City.

He molded a lot of relative unknowns into a slick combination whose tight defense and well-designed offense swept them through unbeaten. Not all stayed unknown for long, however, as stardom reached out for Spencer Haywood, Jo-Jo White and Charlie Scott.

This Year Different

There were defections of a different nature in the most recent pre-Olympic period.

In its desperation for talent the American Basketball Association raided many a campus and made premature professionals of such potential Olympians as Julius Erving, George McGinnis, Jim Chones, Johnny Neumann and Ralph Simpson. But so huge is the stockpile of talent in the United States that no indications of alarm have been evident. Not yet, anyway.

However, I have been watching Olympic basketball competition since America laughed its way through the first tournament at Berlin on 1916 and I must believe that the United States ceased being a shoo-in after the 1960 Spectacular at Rome.

That was when a peak was reached which never can be approached again because no Olympic team ever could be better than the American squad of 1960.

Pete Newell was the coach, the same chap who just became the general manager of the Los Angeles Lakers. I remember chatting with him at courtside in Rome before the tournament began.

"My only worry," he said, "Is that we might be upset in the first couple of games before we get organized. After that I'll just hand them the ball and say, 'Take it away, fellows, you know what to do with it.'"

They sure did. But this was an unbelievable Olympic team anyway. On it were Jerry West, Oscar Robertson, Jerry Lucas, Walt Bellamy, Terry Dischinger, Darrall Imhoff, Bob Boozer, Adrian Smith and others.

The closest game was against the Russians, 24 points. The widest winning margin was 62 against Yugoslavia, then just starting to rise as an international power. The tournament final was a 27-point romp over a fine Brazilian team.

An American observer watching foreign teams in action cannot help but be impressed by their slick ball handling, their dribbling and their playmaking. It was Lucas who pointed sharply at the one serious flaw all foreign teams have.

None Were Good Shooters

"None are in our class as shooters," said Jerry one day in Rome.

"Americans have the feel of a basketball from infancy and develop an instinctive knack of popping the ball into the hoop. With foreigners it's a conscious, studied effort. We're merely doing what comes naturally. That's the big difference, the shooting."

Our Olympic group will be the equivalent of a pickup team. Some foreign clubs, however, will play as many as 52 games in a full summer schedule. Iba plans three weeks of scrimmaging at the Air Force Academy before the selection committe settles on a 12-man squad.

Later there will be a three-week stay in Hawaii for intensive drilling in the set style of discipline play that Iba favors and which seems best suited for this type of team.

Before leaving for Munich they will get a postgraduate course by playing exhibition games with professional teams.

"The pros were a lot of help to our boys in previous years," said Iba. "And we will need more help than ever because foreign teams now go in for changing defenses. So we will need not only set plays but the passing to the open man just like the Knicks."

It isn't a bad system.

Lincoln Star sports editor Hal Brown is on vacation. His Sports Signals column will resume next week.

FINLEY BUYS MEMPHIS PROS

...ABA Sells One Franchise, Dissolves Two Others

New York (UPI) — The American Basketball Association approved the sale of the Memphis Pros Tuesday to Charles O. Finley and dissolved the Pittsburgh and Floridian franchises.

The sale of the Pros to Finley, who owns the Oakland Athletics baseball team and the California Seals of the National Hockey League, is subject to approval of the Memphis club stockholders and the ABA council.

Commissioner Jack Dolph said the league would play with nine teams next season and contracts of Pittsburgh and Floridian players have been acquired by the ABA.

"The ABA has acquired the property rights to the players contracts of these men and will disseminate these rights by means of a draft, which we will hold later this evening," Dolph said.

The teams will draft in inverse order of their finish at the end of the regular season, with the exception of league champion Indiana, which will pick last, and runner-up New York, which will choose next to last. Memphis gets first crack in the special draft, followed by Carolina, Denver, Dallas, Virginia, Utah, Kentucky, New York and Indiana.

The Memphis trustees will meet with Finley in Chicago Wednesday to discuss terms of purchase.

The commissioner stated that the league had purchased on undisclosed terms the Miami and Pittsburgh franchises in order to retain the player contracts and spread them around the league to equalize ABA strength.

"Nothing that happened tonight will affect the National Basketball Association meetings in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia later this week," Dolph said. "We will continue our relationship with the NBA by reporting everything that has taken place at this meeting."

The sale to Finley came within an hour and one-half of the 4:00 p.m. CDT deadline the league had given to prospective purchasers. The league had approved a motion to withdraw the Memphis franchise from sale and this probably would have meant the club also would fold. But Finley's Memphis contact phoned him and the sports mogual immediately wired the money to a New York bank to secure the deal.

Finley agreed to pay $109,000 to the Pros owed the league and $140,000 to the club's creditors.

The Floridians and Pittsburgh Condors were charter members of the ABA when it was formed five year ago. During that time, the Pittsburgh franchise had moved to Minnesota for one year and then returned to Pittsburgh. The Floridians franchise had been in Minnesota when the Pipers made their move to that state and switched their base of operations to Miami.

The choice players up for grabs are John Brisker and George Thompson of Pittsburgh, and Mack Calvin, Warren Jabali and Larry Jones of the Floridians. Each team gets one pick at a time.

BECKERT ALMOST MAKES NEW KIND OF CATCH

'Mystery Witness' Reports On Fixing

By United Press International

The mysterious Mr. X appeared before the House Crime Committee in Washington, D.C., Tuesday and labeled virtually every major thoroughbred race track on the East Coast "from Florida to Maine" as being controlled by use of illegal drugs and collusion by jockeys and trainers.

Bobby Byrne, identified by the committee as a "horseracing specialist," was under heavy security as he took the witness stand. An admitted horse race fixer, Byrne named Suffolk Downs, Lincoln Downs, Narragansett, Pocono, Laurel, Tropical Park, Aqueduct, Hialeah, Dover, Garden State, Churchill Downs, Shenandoah, East St. Louis, Rockingham, River Downs, Liberty Bell, Bowie, Fairmont Park and Pimlico as the tracks that had been infiltrated by "fixers."

Byrne said he was part of a betting ring that administered depressants to as many as eight horses in a given race. The one or two horses that weren't drugged were the ones the money would go on.

Byrne said the results of the drugs were devastating.

"I could administer this drug to Riva Ridge and a wagon horse could beat him," he said. Byrne's testimony prompted almost immediate denials from the tracks and local racing commissions named.

"Byrne's story is really so far fetched it doesn't deserve any answer," said Phil Baker, general manager of Liberty Bell Park, just outside of Philadelphia. "I do believe the man is really talking, largely, not intelligently, because our security would not be in any way conducive to anything of that nature. We investigate anyone who comes in here. And as far as a broad statement with the jockeys and trainers being concerned, that really is so far fetched it doesn't deserve any answer."

"Bobby Byrne doesn't know what he is talking about," said Pennsylvania Horse Racing Commission Executive Director James La John. "You don't need a depressant to make a horse run slow. There are many other ways to do it—overwork, overfeed, training methods. Anyway, it is very unlikely that people like him could get into the barns. It sounds to me like he is not a qualified witness."

Pat Lynch, a vice president of the New York Racing Association which oversees racing at Aqueduct, said he knows of no "hanky panky" at any track under NYRA jurisdiction. "There have been no scandals here," said Lynch.

Chick Lang, general manager of the Maryland Jockey Club which operates the Pimlico Race Course, likened Byrne's story to a Mickey Rooney movie.

"You couldn't make a third rate movie out of this stuff," said an outraged Lang. "Irresponsible and ridiculous. No facts. I want to hear some facts and then we will go into court and find out what's what. Some of the boneheads on this committee should know something about racing before looking into it."

Bucks' Official Heads Group That Buys Bulls

From News Wires

Owners of the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association announced the sale of the club Tuesday night to Marvin Fischman, vice chairman of the Milwaukee Bucks.

The announcement came following a meeting of the Bulls owners.

The sale will be submitted for approval of the NBA owners at their meeting Thursday in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Fischman spearheaded one group vying for purchase of the Bulls with a Chicago-based group led by Arthur Wirtz, owner of the Chicago Stadium.

It was reported that Fischman's investors were prepared to pay $4 million for the club, while the Wirtz group's bid ranged around $2.5 million.

Bulls' owners had been reluctant to discuss any pending deals for the sale ever since wealthy Canadian Peter Graham claimed to have closed a deal to purchase the club.

The deal was cancelled amid fears he would move the franchise to San Diego.

Dick Lein, one of the original Bulls owners and a director of the club, said the decision to sell to the Fischman group came Tuesday after owners agreed they just weren't making money on the club.

Klein said the owners voted for the deal because the price was fair, the Fischman group was basketball oriented and they had agreed to keep the club in Chicago.

He said the price was "the buyer's business" and the exact price would not be disclosed.

The Bulls drew an average of 10,525 fans during their 1971-72 season when they won 57 games and lost 25. They lost four straight games to the Los Angeles Lakers in the first round of the NBA playoffs this spring.

The club was formed in January of 1966 and Klein served as manager until he was fired three years ago. The current general manager, Pat Williams, took over then and has managed the team since.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed by the club, formerly the Cincinnati Royals.

Ratliff, who stands 6-10, was an NAIA 1972 all-American.

Frederickson's Sets Retirement

New York (AP) — Running back Tucker Frederickson of the New York Giants, plagued by injuries throughout most of his National Football League career, announced his retirement Tuesday, saying "I can't play the way I want to play."

Frederickson, 29, was the No. 1 draft choice in the NFL in 1965 and immediately become a rookie sensation by gaining 659 yards rushing. In the next two seasons, however, he tore up both knees and never was able to regain his rookie form.

Last season Frederickson rushed 64 times for 242 yards and caught 21 passes for 114 yards.

In his six NFL seasons, he gained 2,209 yards rushing and scored 10 touchdowns. He caught 128 passes for another 1,001 yards.

Former Champ Knocks Out Foe

Miami (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Jimmy Ellis knocked out Reco Brooks of Phoenix, Ariz., at 2:50 of the second round in a scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday night at Miami Marine Stadium.

Ellis, of Louisville, Ky., floored Brooks for the count with a combination followed by a short right uppercut. Ellis weighed 198 and Brooks 213.

"I never heard of Reco Brooks before he fought Ron Stander, and he really didn't show too much," Ellis said after the fight.

Aaron's 650th Homer Peps Braves To Win

. . . METS LOSE, 6-5, IN TENTH

By The Associated Press

Henry Aaron blasted his 650th career homerun to give the Atlanta Braves a 6-5 10-inning victory over slumping New York Tuesday night, dropping the Mets a full half-game behind Pittsburgh in the National League East.

The Mets, who have now lost 8 of their last 11 games, got home runs from Duffy Dyer in the sixth, Tom Seaver and Ken Boswell in the seventh, but lost a 5-2 lead in the eighth when a dropped fly by center fielder Tommie Agee kept an Altanta rally alive. A similar error by Agee Monday night allowed the Braves' to score their winning run.

For Aaron, his 11th homer of the season put him two ahead of the Mets' Willie Mays in career homers. For Seaver, it was the ninth straight time he has failed to finish a game.

Pittsburgh, meanwhile, had its game with San Francisco rained out. The Pirates have won 21 of their last 26.

In other National League games, San Diego edged Chicago 4-3, Montreal whipped Houston 5-1, Los Angeles nipped St. Louis 2-1 and Cincinnati beat Philadelphia 4-2 and 8-4 in a doubleheader.

In the American League, it was Kansas City 4, Boston 2; Chicago 2, New York 0; Texas 4, Milwaukee 0; and Minnesota 3, Detroit 1, in a rain-shortened six-inning game.

Leron Lee's homer and double drove in three San Diego runs. He also singled to keep alive a Padre rally for a run in the seventh. The Cubs scored once in the third and twice in the eighth on Billy Williams' eighth homer.

Mike Torrez' three-hitter and Mike Jorgensen's two-run homer gave Montreal ist victory. Torrez, 6-3, allowed Houston two singles and a homer by Jimmy Wynn in the eighth.

Los Angeles' Manny Mota stole home in the sixth inning, then sacrificed in the eighth to help score the winning run. Lou Brock scored on Donn Clendenon's sacrifice fly in the eighth for St. Louis.

Denis Menke drove in three runs with a single and triple for Cincinnati's first victory. Johnny Bench hit his 16th homer. In the second game, Cincinnati got a homer from George Foster as the sweep over Philadelphia gave the Reds victories in 13 of 14 games and six straight.

Fred Patek singled for two runs and Amos Otis doubled in two more as Kansas City rallied in the ninth to beat Boston. Danny Cater drove in both Red Sox runs.

An eighth-inning homer by Carlos May gave the White Sox both runs against the Yankees. Wilbur Wood, 10-4, gave New York just three hits.

Texas' Pete Broberg, 5-4, gave Milwaukee just three hits. It was the Brewers' sixth straight loss. Dalton Jones drove in two Rangers runs in the first. Toby Harrah and Broberg drove in single runs in the fourth.

Rod Carew's two run-scoring singles and Tony Oliva's first RBI of the season gave Minnesota its runs. Oliva has just returned from the disabled list after knee surgery. Aurelio Rodriguez drove in Detroit's lone run.

On the West Coast Mike Cuellar pitched a seven-hitter and slammed a two-run homer to pace the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-1 victory over the Oakland A's

'Ailing', 'Healthy' Golfers Eye Open

. . . TOURNEY SET TO BEGIN THURSDAY

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Gary Player doesn't have a chance.

He's healthy.

But the gritty little South African is one of the few great players—hale and hearty as golf's walking wounded gathered for the 72nd United States Open Golf Championship.

Lee Trevino just checked out of an El Paso, Tex., hospital.

Jack Nicklaus is on the mend from bronchitis.

Billy Casper has some back trouble and a heavy cold.

Arnold Palmer peers uncertainly through new, large, round spectacles.

Doug Sanders has a cold so bad he can hardly speak.

Tony Jacklin admits to being travel weary.

Jim Jamieson, who led for two rounds in last week's IVB-Philadelphia Classic, has a sore shoulder.

But history indicates that the halt and ailing have a habit of making superior showings in this most prestigious of all the world's championships.

Olin Dutra won the 1934 Open after almost withdrawing because of a severe stomach ailment.

Ken Venturi had a doctor walking with him and was suffering from heat prostration when he won in 1964.

Palmer tied Nicklaus in 1962 when he had three stitches in his hand from an accident with a car door.

Craig Wood won with an injured back in 1941.

And Ben Hogan took the title in 1950 on shattered, reconstructed legs only 16 months after a near-fatal automobile accident.

So, should the ailing Trevino make it—and he says he will—he has some precedents working for him in his title defense on the picturesque Pebble Beach Golf Links, a 6,815 yard, par 72 layout on the Monterey 44.

The 72-hole test begins Thursday with Nicklaus a heavy favorite and Trevino still a question mark despite assurances he will compete.

The volatile Super Mex, who won a year ago on the first leg of his unprecedented sweep of three national titles, was released from an El Paso, Tex. hospital Tuesday after being hospitalized since Saturday with what doctors described as "the beginnings of neumonia." He said he planned to fly here Wednesday.

The 32-year-old Nicklaus, winner of the Masters and two other tournaments this year, says he is completely recovered from the flu and bronchitis which forced him to withdraw from the Memphis Open three weeks ago, an event that was scheduled to be his last tune-up for this one.

He has been here for almost a week, honing his awesome talents for the struggle on the course he ranks as one of his favorites in the United States. He won the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am on the same course earlier this year.

He's a heavy favorite, but the Golden Bear is far from overconfident.

"No one knows—certainly I don't know—how well I'll play until we start competition," said Nicklaus, who looks to this as the second step on a hoped for sweep of all the world's major titles.

Jacklin, Casper and Sanders also rank among the favorites. The youthful Jacklin, an Englishman who has won both the American and British Opens, is having a good year and always seems to play well in the major championships. Casper and Sanders both have broken lengthy slumps.

Palmer, now 42 and troubled by near-sightedness, is at least a sentimental choice. But the old charger has been shut out this year, blowing two good chances when he got overanxious. He hasn't won a major title since the 1964 Masters.

Player, winner of one title and some $67,000 on an abbreviated American swing this season, always ranks as a strong challenger.

Other top candidates include Californians Jerry Heard and George Archer, each winner of two titles and more than $100,000 this season; Australian Bruce Crampton; long Tom Weiskopf, and Bob Murphy.

The final two rounds, Saturday and Sunday, will be telecast nationally ABC-TV.

Hoop School Honors Players

The most valuable players in three age categories from the first session of the Cornhusker Basketball School were announced Tuesday by Nebraska coach Joe Cipriano.

From the midgets, eighth grade and below, Rick Rader of Hastings was chosen. Don Keller of Lincoln was honored from the minors (9th and 10th grades), while Louie Otey of Flandreau, S.D., was picked from the majors (11th and 12th.)

Dale Tjarks, also from Flandreau, was selected as most valuable player for the entire camp session.

Pair Awaits Decision

Edinburg, Tex. (UPI) —Two top scorers on the Pan American University basketball team were acquitted of raping a freshman coed, but they now face a disciplinry committee which will decide whether they can get back on the team.

Prep's Leahy Named To Ak-Sar-Ben Staff

From News Wires

Omaha — Don Leahy, one of the state's most successful high school coaches, has been appointed to the Ak-Sar-Ben executive staff here.

Leahy, who during his 17-year head football coaching job at Omaha's Creighton Prep Jesuit High School, has compiled a record of 118 wins, 25 losses and seven ties, joins the Ak-Sar-Ben staff as coliseum activities director.

In making the announcement, Tom Brock, Ak-Sar-Ben executive director and general manager, said the civic organization is "very pleased, and indeed fortunate," in obtaining Leahy's services.

Leahy said, though he had mixed emotions about leaving Creighton Prep, "I will always be grateful to the school and the many great Jesuits and countless numbers of young men who came under my direction."

The veteran administrator and athletic director said he had been seeking other employment for some weeks.

Leahy had been mentioned as a prime candidate for the athletic directorship at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Leahy, a 1947 Prep graduate, earned his Bachelor of Science degree at Marquette University in 1952 and a Masters degree in education from Creighton University in 1958.

While at Marquette, Leahy was named the nation's third-leading passer in college football in 1951.

Leahy begins his new position this week, Ak-Sar-Ben officials said.

Besides being coach, he has been athletic director for 13 years and figured prominently in the formation of the new 16-school Metropolitan Conference.

Kentucky Racing Chairman Linked With Sportservice?

Louisville, Ky. (AP) — The Louisville Courier-Journal, in a copyrighted story Tuesday, linked the chairman of the Kentucky State Racing Commission with a corporation currently under investigation by Congress.

The newspaper said that Emprise, the vast sports concessionaire, is being investigated by Congress and by the Kentucky State Racing Commission and the state Alcoholic Beverage Commission because of an earlier felony conviction in California.

But, the Courier-Journal pointed out, the man in charge of policing thoroughbred racing in Kentucky, William H. May, is doing business with Emprise through a $1.5 million loan to Florida Downs, of which he is president, and a concession at the Florida race track.

May has acknowledged the loan, but asserted it has always been public knowledge. The loan is payable over 25 years and installments have been met regularly, he said.

"There's no way for Sportservice Emprise's principal subsidiary to make any demand on me," May said. "If I found myself in a position that I could not honestly deal with Emprise, I would disqualify myself."

It was pointed out by the Louisville newspaper that the records of the Florida Division of Pari-Mutuel Racing, formerly that state's racing commission, show that Sportservice has more than a caterer's interest in Florida Downs.

During the fiscal year ending May 31, 1968, Sportservice made the loan of $1.5 million to Florida Downs. And over several years, Sportservice has been paid small amounts of money — $1,232 in one fiscal year, for instance — for "advertising, publicity and public relations," the newspaper said.

In return for its loan Sportservice has a concession contract with Florida Downs, a first mortgage on Florida Downs real property, and a chattel mortgage on the track's personal property.

The mortgages mean that Sportservice could claim title to all of the racetrack's property if Florida Downs should ever default on the loan, the Courier-Journal said.

In Kentucky, Emprise owns all the stock in Louisville's Miles Park, and one of its subsidiaries has a contract for the concessions there.

Emprise also owns 69.1 per cent of the stock in Latonia of Florence, Ky., and has a concession with Audubon Raceway in Henderson.

McCoy Recipient Of Scholarship

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) -- Mike McCoy, a University of Kansas football player, has been named the 1972 recipient of the Big Eight Conference's post-graduate scholarship, it was announced Tuesday by commissioner Chuck Neinas.

McCoy, from Hiawatha, Kan., will use the $500 scholarship to continue his education at the University of Kansas Medical School. A May graduate in bio-electrical engineering, McCoy compiled a 3.82 grade-point average while playing center for the Jayhawk football team.

Others considered for the annual award were Mike Gillespie, Iowa State pitcher; Joe Crews, Oklahoma State linebacker; John Stavely, Colorado linebacker; Scott Arnold, Missouri swimmer, and Dick Rupert, Nebraska football guard.

Rugg Captures Tennis Title

He defeated John Stauffer of Omaha, No. 1 ranked, for the title. Scores of Rugg's matches were 10-4 over Jim Perry of Lincoln, 6-1, 6-2 over Tom Salestrom of Kearney, and 6-2, 6-4 over Stauffer.

Negotiation Deadline Will Not Be Extended

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Association's board of governors said Tuesday it will not extend the deadline for franchise negotiations and will firm up the roster of teams for next season that will include the best the league has to offer.

"We plan to go into this season with the varsity," explained Commissioner Jack Dolph. "We are formulating plans to function as a strong, independent league. We are not going to dissolve or disband as the media has been saying."

The Memphis franchise appeared all wrapped up for sale to former pro football player and Dallas realtor Langdon Viracola. It was reported the offer was withdrawn.

A proposal regarding the New England area, specifically New Haven and Hartford, will be discussed at an afternoon session. There has been some talk the Pittsburgh franchise might be transferred to Connecticut if a buyer for the team could be found.

The fate of the Floridians was not brought up at the morning session, but will have to be resolved if Dolph's promise of a permanent alignment for next season is to be met.

Avron Fogelman, president of the Memphis Pros, said he was shocked and surprised over Viracola's withdrawal.

"We thought he met all the financial requirements to buy the team," Fogelman said.

Viracola's withdrawal has not been officially received by the

"We are trying to cooperate with anyone who has a proposal of purchase," Dolph said. "But it must be made evident that the purchase will benefit the league."

On the New England market, Dolph said he didn't think the area was ready for major league basketball when it first was discussed last January, and, "in my opinion, the situation hasn't changed."

A number of changes was adopted by the rules committee, including widening the foul lanes from 12 to 16 feet.In addition, they ruled that all arenas must have horns that can be heard; approved a zone press any place on the floor, but not a zone defense, embraced the National Basketball Association rule that allows the offensive team to move the ball to midcourt after a timeout, and permits a team to place as many men in the backcourt as it desires.

The ABA also heard a report from the television committee on its negotiations with the Columbia Broadcasting System and a merchandising plan for selling TV rights.

Arrangements were made to negotiate the league's contract with the Players Association

Commission Sets Public Hearings

For public hearings are scheduled for the morning session of the Game and Parks Commission's next monthly meeting on June 23.

A hearing at 9:15 a.m. will involve setting of the rail and snipe seasons, and another at 9:30 a.m. will deal with the placing of three wildlife species on Nebraska's endangered species list. The three rare species are the black-footed ferret, the swift fox, and the lake sturgeon.

At 10 a.m., the commissioners will discuss a statement of policy on hunting coyotes from aircraft, and an 11 a.m .hearing will deal with dog-training regulations.

The hearings will be held on the third floor of the Game and Parks Commission headquarters, 2200 North 33rd St., Lincoln.

Stock Mart Changes Are Minor

New York (AP) —The stock market had trouble making up its mind Tuesday, as it did Monday. Prices changes were minor, and trading continued at the unimpressive levels of recent sessions.

Brokers said buyers were hesitant after last week's major losses and the market's indecisive performance Monday.

Until there is some news development of economic or international significance, they said, investors have little motivation to get into the market.

On the New York Strock Exchange, advances and declines played tag with each other through most of the session. At the close there were 684 declines and 683 advances, with 380 unchanged.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed at 938.29, up 1.58.

The Big Board's index of more than 1,300 common stocks closed ahead .26 to 59.66.

Oil stocks were firm in active trading, and some of the metals developed moderate gains. Most of the other issues, including the glamour contingent, were mixed.

Turnover on the Big Board amounted to 15.72 million shares, compared with 13.39 million Monday.

The Big Board's most active issue was American Airlines, which was off 1⅛ to 41⅛ on 495,600 shares — including a block of 452,700 at 40½.

As evidence that institutional investors were more active, block trades of 10,000 shares or more totaled 142 compared with a revised figure of 107 for Monday. Among them were 74,500 shares of Trans World Airlines at 51⅝. The issue closed at the same figure, off ⅝.

No Action Taken On Insurance Plan

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

No action was taken Tuesday by the County Board on the request of the County Employes Association that the county increase its contribution to the employes group health and insurance plan.

The association president, Deputy Sheriff Roy Ostrander, asked the County Board to increase its payment toward the Businessman's Assurance Co. premium to two-thirds — the same amount the city contributes to the city employes insurance plan.

Although he could not give specific figures, since the premium may be changed, Ostrander contended that more county employes would be encouraged to switch to the family plan if the county increased its share.

$8 County Share

Under the family plan an employe with a $30.98 monthly premium, is paying $22.98, with the county's share being $8.

If the county increased its share to two-thirds, the employe's payment would then be reduced to $10.32 and the county's share raised to $20.66, Ostrander explained.

The two commissioners present, William Grossman and Kenneth Bourne, recommended that the proposal be brought before the board at budget time. Commissioner Robert Colin Sr. was out of town.

In other action Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert reported on the nursing home situation in the county.

155 Patients Affected

Trabert said that if eight nursing homes which he surveyed close their doors July 1 due to new state regulations, 155 welfare patients in these homes will have to be relocated.

Currently, there are 559 welfare patients in nursing in Lancaster County and 131 patients outside the county, he said.

Although his office is trying to relocate the 155 patients whose nursing homes may close, Trabert termed the situation "critical."

In further action the board:

—Approved the application of George Dudek for a subdivision permit on a 1.8-acre tract, west of Agnew.

—Appointed County Atty. Paul Douglas to serve on the newly-formed Merit System Commission, as a representative of the Lancaster County Sheriff's Office.

—Held a public hearing on the application of Leland Sittler for a Sunday beer permit at 500 West Van Dorn. Appearing for the applicant, attorney Edwin Perry asked for equal treatment with other lounges in the county which have been granted Sunday beer permits.

Pointing out that Sittler's business would be near the Lincoln city limits — and that the Sunday sale of beer is not permitted in the city — Bourne said, "If we grant this, we might as well open up the city."

—Held public hearings on the application of N & P Corp. for a retail on-and-off-sale beer license and a bottle club license for a lounge, north of I-80, on Hwy. 77.

—Took no action on the request of Jerry Bowen, real estate director for the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation, that the county lease a fourplex at 1905 A.

Bowen said the monthly rent would be $450 without central air conditioning and $500 if air conditioning were installed.

The fourplex is needed to house the 12 retarded people who now live in two hostels which must be vacated because of zoning violations, he said.

CHANGE OF PACE

Animal Control Officer William Antisdell, usually called on to deal with dogs and cats, tries to get a pair of pigs to heel in Madison, Wis. He apprehended them in the halls of Madison West High School. The porkers were apparently turned loose in an end-of-the-year prank by students.

Bremer Trial Date Slated For July 17

Baltimore (AP) — A trial date of July 17 for Arthur H. Bremer on charges of shooting Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and a Secret Service agent was set Tuesday by U.S. District Court Judge Edward S. Northrop.

Northrop scheduled the trial at the conclusion of a hearing at which he signed a modified order for psychiatric examinations for Bremer.

No decision has apparently been reached on whether the 21-year old Milwaukee man will first stand trial on federal or state charges.

Prince Georges County state's Attorney Arthur Marshall earlier said July 12 was the tentative date for the state trial.

Bremer faces state and federal charges in connection with the shootings of Wallace and three other persons during a May 15 campaign appearance at a Laurel, Md. shopping center.

A federal grand jury indicted Bremer on charges of assaulting a presidential candidate and a federal officer and for illegal transportation of a pistol across state lines.

The state indictment charged Bremer with six offenses in connection with the wounding of the four, attempted murder, assault and battery, assault with intent to murder, assault with intent to maim and two violations of the state handgun control law.

1973 Auto Buyer To Pay Lots More

Detroit (UPI) — You'll be paying more — lots more — for your 1973 automobile, and probably enjoying it less.

New safety, damarability and emissions requirements becoming effective with 1973 models will boost prices on full-sized models not less than $200 — probably more. Motorists also can expect poorer performance and poorer gas mileage as a result of further emission standards for the 1973 models.

The expected price increases for new equipment on the 1973's will again wipe out the under $2,000 car on the domestic scene. It probably will push the standard, full-size car close to the $4,000 mark again.

For example, a Chevrolet Impala in 1971 sold for $3,813 as the suggested retail price, or the sticker price. Following the wage-price freeze and removal of the 7% excise tax — about $225 on an Impala — the sticker price should have dropped below $3,600.

It didn't because the auto companies won price increases on the 1972 models and, as excise tax repeal was eaten a result, all but $42.10 of the up. After all the ups and downs, the retail price of a 1972 Impala ended up a $3,770.90.

For 1973, add at least $200 more per car for the new safety, damagability and emissions requirements. And that does not take into account increases in labor and material costs the automakers also will pass on to the car-buying public.

Altogether, based on a sales year of around 10 million cars, the cost to the consumer of the new requirements to meet federal standards will be some $2 billion. That's only the start. More costs will be added to meet even stricter standards in ensuing years and by 1976, the higher cost of safety and emissions control will be in the neighborhood of $8 billion a year.

That does not include the higher expense in fuel motorists will spend because their cars will get as much as 25% poorer mileage. That could add another half a billion dollars a year to the motorists' bill for driving a new car.

The biggest single direct cost increase for 1973 cars will be for new bumpers which must be installed to meet federal standards for a five-mile-per-hour front-end barrier collision without damage, and 2½-miles per hour for rear bumpers.

This means the use of hydraulic cushions for the bumpers on heavier cars and extension of the front bumpers about four inches beyond the grille to absorb the impact. Because frames must be stiffened and adjustments made to the suspension for the greater weight of the new bumpers, the total cost of the bumpers with hydraulic systems can run $100 more than present bumpers.

Another new safety standard requires the use of an ignition interlock which will prevent a car from being started until seat belts are fastened. It's an interim standard until the controversial standards which may require air bags become effective with 1975 models.

At any rate, these interlock systems which also include a light on the instrument panel and a buzzer figure to cost not less than $15 each.

Beginning with the 1973 models, auto engines for the first time must meet a national standard on oxide of nitrogen emissions, set at 3 grams per mile — slightly stiffer than the 1972 California standard.

For most, if not all, engines, this will require the use of an exhaust gas recirculation system (EGR) which recirculates a portion of the exhaust gases back into the engine for reburning.

But to make the engines run even reasonably well, with the partial exhaust gas mixture, the initial fuel mixture must be enriched. This increases gas useage.

Even so, engines run rough, can be hard to start — particularly in winter — and will have a tendency to stall at idle, and also to "diesel" or continue running after the ignition is turned off.

In an era of rising prices, the car buyer can expect to pay for the safety and emission devices that make his car safer to drive and easier on the environment.

Pershing Adopting $301,827 Budget

A $301,827 operating budget for 1972-73 was adopted by the Pershing Auditorium Board Tuesday.

The major items include $170,360 for salaries, $88,967 for operating and maintenance and $18,500 in capital improvements.

Included in the budget which next goes to the mayor and finally to the City Council, is a $15,000 request for drapes to partition off sections of the auditorium for symphony concerts and theater productions.

Auditorium manager Ike Hoig said he has been asked to appear before the City Council next Monday to discuss the drapes.

At last Monday's pre-council session the council questioned the expense and necessity of purchasing the curtains.

Southeast Lutheran School Group Elects Interim Board

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Seward — The fledgling Lutheran School Association of Southeast Nebraska elected an interim board of directors to serve pending adoption of articles of incorporation.

One pastor, the Rev. Robert Wagner of Gresham-Thayer, and one teacher, Elwood Ziegler of Utica-St. Paul, were elected to the temporary board, along with five laymen. laymen.

The association was formed to institute a Lutheran high school in the York-Seward area to replace the recently closed Seward-Concordia Secondary Laboratory School.

Articles of incorporation, approved by the group at its previous meeting, have not yet been filed with the state, in order to give interested persons until Sept. 1 to sign it as charter members. Forty-eight persons had signed the articles as of Tuesday night.

A publicity committee is at work presenting information on the possibility of a new Lutheran high school to 22 congregations in the York-Seward Missouri Luthean circuit.

Elected as lay members of the board were Dr. Duane Smith of York, Fred Erks of Waco, Mrs. Charles Krutz of Seward, Mrs. Clyde Ehlers of Waco and Gerald Brunworth of Seward.

Hughes Bros., Inc., now employs 300 in a 275,000-square-foot plant.

Man Killed Being Led From Court

New Castle, Pa. (AP) — A man was shot to death Tuesday as sheriff's deputies led him from a courtroom where he was sentenced on manslaughter charges. The brother of the manslaughter victim was immediately arrested in the shooting, officers said.

The sheriff's office said Gary Couch, 24, was being removed from the Lawrence County Courthouse after receiving a 6- to 12-year prison term in the killing of Alex Phillips in January. Couch had pleaded guilty several days ago, authorities said.

Witnesses said the victim was hit "three to five times" in the attack.

Couch was rushed to nearby Jameson Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment, then transferred to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Youngstown, Ohio, where he died. A spokesman said he had been shot in the head and shoulder.

Police identified the man in custody as Tony Phillips, a brother of Alex.

A witness to the shooting, Marjorie Young, an attorney, said Couch was handcuffed to a sheriff's deputy when a man standing abut 15 feet away raised a gun and opened fire.

Other deputies took the gun from the assailant.

86-Year-Old Woman Driver Loses License After Chase

Oklahoma City (AP) — An 86-year-old Chickasha, Okla., woman — maintaining her innocence to the very end — lost her driver's license Tuesday after officers testified she led them on a wild auto chase along an interestate highway.

"You don't know what you're doing," exclaimed Lillie C. Leeds as Special Court Judge Charles Halley entered a guilty verdict on the reckless driving charge.

Judge Halley told Mrs. Leeds, who spent Monday night in the county jail, that he did not want to see her "behind the wheel again." He revoked her license and fined the woman $500, with the fine suspended.

Highway Patrolmen L. G. Enterline and Bob Thomas testified the woman was "weaving all over" Interstate 35 Monday night. They said they stopped her and as they were writing a ticket, she hopped into the car and sped off, running over a curbing and flower garden of a service station.

She was finally halted on a city street, the patrolmen testified, and taken to jail after officers wre unable to locate any relatives.

Another witness, former Special Court Judge Jack Thorne, testified the woman nearly ran him off the road. The troopers said the woman had traffic on the interstate backed up more than 1½ miles.

However, Mrs. Leeds claimed the troopers had arrested the wrong woman. She said she had never seen the arresting officer Enterline before but "he certainly is a nice-looking gentleman." She then winked at the trooper.

One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
